Shoplifting ring broken by police

STERLING, Ill. (AP) — Illinois State Police said Friday that one man has been arrested and others are being sought in connection with a multi-state shoplifting ring believed to have taken as much as $50,000 in merchandise annually.

Eugene Houston, 22, Cordova, was arrested Thursday and charged with felony theft.

Authorities said the ring is believed to have operated from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to Sterling and from Peoria to Milwaukee.

Authorities explained that the ring was believed to have struck mostly at chain stores, taking merchandise and exchanging it for money at outlets of the same chain in other cities.

In the case of large items, such as television sets, the merchandise would be sold through a fence.

Prime lending rate lowered

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the nation's largest commercial banks lowered their prime lending rates to 9.5 per cent today.

Bank of America, the largest, cut its prime from 10 per cent to 9.5 per cent, effective Monday.

First National City Bank, second largest, and Morgan Guaranty Trust, fifth largest, lowered their primes from 9.75 per cent to 9.5 per cent, also effective Monday.

Meanwhile, Manufacturers Hanover Trust, the Bank of New York, Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh and other banks lowered their prime rates from 10 per cent to 9.75 per cent, the rate now held by most large banks.

The prime rate, the lowest fee banks charge their best corporate customers, is a short-term loan rate, generally used to cover seasonal money needs of manufacturers.

It is not directly connected to longer-term rates such as consumer credit or mortgage rates, but a sustained downward trend in shorter-term rates usually indicates pressure is being taken off longer-term rates also.

Money market analysts expect the downward trend to continue for many weeks as the recession spreads through the economy.

"Weasel" killed by police trying to reach arsenal

MONTREAL (AP) — Richard Blass, a 28-year-old escaped convict who was a suspect in the Montreal night club massacre and known as the "Cat" or "Weasel" because of numerous escapes from violent death, died in a hail of police bullets early today, authorities said.

Police said Blass was hit trying to reach an arsenal of weapons, including two sawed-off shotguns, revolvers, pistols and gas masks, that he had stored in the bedroom of a Swiss-style chalet in Val David, a ski area in the Laurentians 60 miles north of Montreal.

Acting on a tip, heavily armed detectives and police surrounded the four-room chalet about 4:30 a.m. and called on Blass to surrender, authorities said. Blass replied with a few gunshots before police opened fire and cut him down with automatic weapons, they added.

Authorities said a man and two women in the chalet with Blass were taken into custody.

Walker announces local construction projects

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker announced Thursday some of the projects involved in his proposed $4.1 billion construction program to create jobs and bolster Illinois' economy.

He traveled to seven cities to explain the proposals specifically meant to benefit those areas.

"This program will speed up the timetable of construction—when we start and when we complete building," Walker said.

The projects include stepped up efforts to construct schools or rehabilitate old ones, make home loan money more readily available from the Illinois Housing Development Authority and speed up work on roads, bridges, parklands, airports and state facilities.

The highlights, by area, include:

NORTHERN ILLINOIS
—At least 10 new schools or major rehabilitations at existing schools.

—Continued acceleration of supplemental freeway along Illinois 51.

—Road work on more than 100 miles of narrow and otherwise hazardous rural roads and urban streets and 11 bridges.

—Building a new $2 million nursery at Dixon State School.

—Development of three new state parks at Shabbona, Castle Rock and Lake Defiance at McHenry.

—$15 million or more of state authorized sewer system construction grants to communities.

—A new marina on the Rock River. —Acceleration of the Rockford Civic Center.

—Airport improvements at Freeport, Rochelle and Dixon.

—Undertaking capital rehabilitations at Singer Zone Center and Dixon State school structures.

Explosion rocks St. Patrick Catholic Church in Belfast, Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The detonator of a bomb exploded in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church today and sent lunchtime worshippers fleeing to the street.

Security forces rushing to the scene saw a young woman and man run away and later discovered in a back pew a sack stuffed with sticks of explosive gelignite and a can of gasoline.

A soldier reported the sack was bloodstained, indicating the bombers had been hurt.

The panic began when a loud crack echoed through the church in Donegall Street in downtown Belfast.

Police said they did not know whether the explosives were being assembled into a bomb by extremist Protestants or by Irish Republican Army guerrillas.

IRA bombers Thursday planted a bomb in Belfast's battered, multistory Europa Hotel after overpowering security guards outside. The blast caused damage estimated at $720,000 but no one was hurt. It was the 29th time the hotel had been bombed in three years.

Sally Peterson, Heidi's mother, last saw her 4-year-old daughter last Feb. 21 as the girl and her brother Carl, then 2½, played in front of the family's modest home. Mrs. Peterson drove to the grocery store and about 15 minutes later her husband Roy stepped outside the house. He found Carl sitting on a three-wheeled toy with a long face. "Heidi go," said the boy. Police have maintained that Heidi probably was abducted. Assistant Police Chief M. D. Wilson said the area where the bones were found was "thoroughly searched several times" after the girl disappeared. Wilson said he finds it hard to believe the bones would not have been found earlier if they had been there all along. Thousands of volunteers had searched for Heidi. More than 250,000 posters headlined "Where is Heidi?" were printed and distributed as the search gained nationwide attention. One veteran Seattle detective said he never had seen such public response on a case.

Mrs. Peterson, told a Seattle television station Thursday night, "It looks like the story has come to an end. It's not the end we prayed for."

Mrs. Peterson also said she wanted to express her thanks and those of her husband to Puget Sound area citizens "for all the help that everyone has given us over the past year."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to block President Ford's oil import tariff hike for 90 days, to boost the federal debt limit to a record $531 billion through mid-year and to link the two proposals in what may be a virtually veto-proof bill.

Thus, Democrats who control Congress fired their first big legislative shot in the year's massive battle with the Republican White House over the best way to deal with complex energy and economic problems besetting America.

The vote to link the two proposals together was 15 to 14. Then, the legislation was approved by the committee 19 to 15.

The legislation still faces fights in the House and Senate before it can be given to the President. Ford has refused to postpone his oil import action but must sign into law an increase in the debt ceiling within the coming month or the government cannot continue borrowing money.

The committee measure would force a 90-day delay in the triple-step oil tariff hike which Ford proclaimed Thursday would start Feb. 1.

The debt ceiling bill is considered virtually veto-proof since, without it, the government won't be able to borrow money after Feb. 18.

Ford, meanwhile, declared after signing a proclamation boosting the tariff by $1 a barrel Feb. 1 that a congressional delay would be "a backward step." He then told a nationwide television audience Thursday night that "it would have been a sign of weakness around the world" if he had failed to act.

He expressed confidence his action would spur Congress to move forward on his proposals, despite substantial opposition to them. And he made clear he favors strict limits on fuel supplies through an allocation program with rationing "the last resort" to curb oil use.

Seated on a yellow sofa in a White House sitting room, Ford made these other major points during the hour-long, televised and broadcast interview by two NBC correspondents:

—He defended his statement that the United States might have to act if faced with economic "strangulation" by oil producers, because "I think the public has to have a reassurance, our people, that we are not going to permit America to be strangled to death."

—He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is returning to the Middle East because of "a unique opportunity" to make progress towards a Middle East settlement.

Inflation rate slowing

The inflation eating away at the family budget has started to nibble more slowly: a gallon of gasoline costs less than it did in August; housing prices aren't going up so quickly; beef prices are actually coming down.

Government and industry statistics as well as Associated Press surveys show that prices generally are still higher than they were a year ago and are expected to rise even further. But the rate of increase is declining.

Among the encouraging signs: —The seven-tenths of a per cent increase in the Consumer Price Index in December was the smallest rise since July.

—The November-to-December increase in the average mortgage rate for new homes was the smallest since April.

—Industry figures show the average price of a gallon of gasoline has been declining since mid-summer. The December average was almost 4 per cent less than the August figure.

—Heating oil prices are generally at or below the level they were a year ago.

—Real estate dealers say prices for land have leveled off in some areas and are increasing more slowly in others.

All these indications, however, come after a long period of steadily worsening inflation and recession.

—The cost of living rose 12.2 per cent during 1974, the steepest increase since 1946. Real spendable earnings — weekly pay adjusted for taxes and inflation — declined 5.4 per cent last year for the average married worker with three dependents.

—The average mortgage rate for a new home in December was almost 10 per cent higher than it was a year earlier; the median cost of a new, single-family house was nearly double the price 10 years ago.

—The December gasoline price was about 26 per cent higher than it was a year ago and President Ford's proposed fuel taxes and energy conservation program may mean another cost increase of 20 per cent or about 10 cents a gallon.

—The cost of No. 2 home heating oil in many areas is almost double what it was two years ago and new fuel taxes will mean an estimated 10-cents-a-gallon boost in this figure as well as in the gasoline price.

Energy bill would climb 18 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration says President Ford's proposals would increase the average family's energy bill 18 per cent, with the price hike showing up most in natural gas.

The FEA, in an analysis issued Thursday, said Ford's proposed energy policy — a combination of fees and taxes on energy with reductions of income tax — would increase consumer prices in general by about 2 or 2.5 per cent.

But the governors of 10 Northeastern states who met with Ford claimed that his program would add 5 or 6 per cent to the nation's inflation rate.

FEA Administrator Frank G. Zarb told newsmen his experts would meet with the governors' economists to try to reconcile the discrepancy.

Meanwhile, the FEA stuck to its own analysis, indicating that energy prices — as a proportion of family income — would put a bigger bite on the lower-income groups than the upper-income groups under Ford's plans.

But the FEA added that Ford's proposals for direct payments and tax reductions would more than offset energy price increases for all but those making more than $24,500 a year.

Analyzing regional impacts, the FEA said the Mountain States would feel the largest increase in average fuel costs, while the lowest increase would come to the East South Central region.

The President chose to increase energy prices as a method of discouraging consumption while encouraging investment in new energy production. In his Thursday night television interview, Ford said fuel allocations would be used if his pricing program fails to deter consumption and rationing would be a last resort.

Stooge with the operatic hairdo dies from stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Larry Fine, the frizzy-haired original member of the Three Stooges comedy team, died today. He was 73.

Fine died at the Motion Picture and Television Country Home and Hospital in suburban Woodland Hills. Home officials said death was due to a stroke.

Fine entered the home and hospital in 1971 after he was partially paralyzed by a series of strokes. Although confined to a wheel chair, he remained active and often visited schools, showing his films.

A spokesman for the home said Fine retained his popularity and last Christmas received more than 2,000 cards from fans.

Fine was the stooge with the operatic hairdo. Moe Holland, who was the leader of the Stooges, is the only original member still living. The third original member was Moe's brother Jerry, known as Curly, who died in 1952.

Curly's place was taken by another brother, Samuel, known as Shemp, who died in 1955. After Shemp's death his place was taken by Joe Besser and in 1959 by Joe DeRita.

The Stooges made 218 movie shorts over a 24-year period at Columbia Pictures. Their shorts are still in syndication in some major TV markets.

The original team was part of the act of comedian Ted Healy, who featured the trio in Broadway musicals and brought them to Hollywood in 1930. Healy was both the persecutor and victim of the Stooges, whom he slapped and beat with mock violence.

Their act was a sensation in films, popularizing the act of "stooging" — aiming a palm at another's forehead. Stooging became so prevalent that health authorities feared brain damage of children and the Stooges were prevailed upon to discard the gesture.

Ford affirms energy plan in television interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are key comments by President Ford during his NBC interview Thursday night.

Oil embargo — "We are not going to permit America to be strangled to death" by foreign oil producers, but Ford refused to "talk about any particular military contingency plans" in the event of another oil embargo.

Middle East — "There is a serious danger of war in the Middle East," he said, but added there also is "a unique opportunity" for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to work out another interim Arab-Israeli settlement.

Oil Tariffs — Ford said he boosted tariffs on imported oil because he had to act. "If I had backed off, there would have been two adverse impacts.... Congress would have delayed longer ... and it would have been a sign of weakness around the world...."

CIA — He acknowledged that the Central Intelligence Agency had made mistakes by becoming involved in domestic intelligence. "Mistakes were made going back to 1964 or 1965; it has stopped now," Ford said the agency should not be destroyed for past mistakes.

FBI — "Under no circumstances" should the FBI spy on members of Congress or ordinary Americans. But he said that when proper FBI investigations generated information in a peripheral way about congressmen, it should be given to the legislators involved.

His intelligence — Ford said he is not bothered by talk that he is intellectually incapable of serving as President. His grades in high school, college and law school were in the upper third of his class, he said, so "there must be an awful lot of people much dumber than I."

Vietnam — He pressed for his $300-million military aid request for South Vietnam, reporting that Ambassador Graham Martin had assured him that Saigon "would be over the hump militarily and economically" if adequate aid is made available.

Watergate — "I think it will bother a good many Americans young and old" that Watergate figures have received big advances from publishers for their books. "I wouldn't buy the book."

More confidence needed

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The respected University of Michigan Consumer Confidence Survey has hit another low. That's lethal in the U.S. economy.

Some Texans believe that if a centipede crawls over fresh beef there is a poison in its feet that rots the meat. The confidence factor is like that in our country.

An estimated 40 per cent of everything we buy is in the postponable class. Only about 60 per cent of our purchases is absolutely essential and not postponable.

This proportion is unique in the world because the way we live through our highest standard of living is unique in the world. It descends on us like the half-balled claw of a diving falcon.

In Russia, the average Russian, like Porgy, has "plenty of nothing." Hardly anything most Russians buy is postponable. The population lives on bare necessities.

Even in vastly more prosperous France only about 15 per cent of the French peoples' buying is postponable. Eighty-five per cent is not. In Britain the psychological attitude has equally little to do with British buying.

Recently I was in Rochester, N.Y. It typifies our country's dependence on the confidence factor. The five largest job-supplying industries there are Eastman Kodak, General Motors, Xerox, Bausch & Lomb and the clothing firms. They make cameras, automobile equipment, copiers, optical goods and garments.

Every one of these job-supplying products need not be bought so often if consumers lack confidence.

Their purchase is postponable. The buying of them is discretionary. A low consumer confidence backs up terribly on the jobs and payrolls in Rochester and, more amazingly than we may realize, in nearly every city and town across our country.

Food growing and processing, for example, are the largest industries in our nation. And even our food is much more postponable than we may imagine. This is largely because our food includes so many frills.

Facial tissues, paper towels and disposable diapers have a $1.2-billion annual market. Drug stores have a $4.2-billion-a-year market in ethical drugs and notice among these the great many frills.

We spend more than $1 billion a year for packaged pet foods, with three-quarters of this for the nation's dogs. These feasts for Fido are postponable. Fido could get scraps instead.

We eat about 20 pounds of candy per person a year. Producing children's toys, games, sporting goods and leisuretime equipment is an enormous contributor to our economy. Our job-producing factories sold $6 billion worth of cosmetics and toiletries last year, and beauty parlors did a multimillion-dollar business.

Our chemical industry is a veritable $40-billion-a-year cornucopia. A startlingly large proportion of what it pours out is purchasing-postponable.

The 1974 housing starts were at a seasonally adjusted 1,120,000-unit annual rate. They trailed 1973 by 40 per cent. At the same time, new unsold homes now total 431,000. The postponement of purchases of carpets, draperies, textiles, kitchenware, radio and TV sets and an astounding number of other things is lethal.

There are 60 million households. The job-supplying factories produce about 150 million home appliances a year. Like automobiles, our bellwether industry, new purchases of home appliances are terribly postponable.

Meanwhile, more people are employed today in service employment than in production employment. Almost 60 per cent of all people working are working in service jobs—from car parkers to store clerks, from waitresses to elevator operators. And the most vulnerable thing to postponement is services.

Fire creates its own wind, urging the flames before it. So does confidence. President Ford is dead right when he states that it is battle No. 1 in the fight against recession.

cally adequate. The thought here is that jail is unnecessary, honest work is his right and one is pained for his fine family.

But to hire him as a domestic broadcast commentator is no less than offering Benedict Arnold the job. For Ehrlichman is not an ordinary outlaw, he did not snatch a purse or rob a candy shop. Deliberately and for months on end, he broke not only hallowed laws but the greater statute of public trust. In this regard he is worse than the mugger who preys on one or two victims and by setting in motion forces that eroded 200 years of democratic ideals, he helped make the nation less safe for an entire people.

This is bad enough but the arrogance of the man compounds his sins. John Dean, a cad who once agreed with Richard Nixon that "screwing" White House enemies was "an exciting prospect," at least is repentant. And others of the old White House mob have likewise confessed their regrets, asked forgiveness, begged understanding—thereby winning some compassion.

Ehrlichman, though, despite two jury convictions, mountains of tape recording of his own spoken lawlessness and $400,000 worth of attorneys unable to conceal his guilt, maintains not only innocence but victimization. He says a conspiracy of unfair jurors, judges and newpeople have done him wrong.

Presumably, if hired by Mutual, Ehrlichman would try to continue this defense in the homes of millions. Imagine him speaking from behind the gates of McNeil Island, Wash., perhaps introducing himself as No. 145678, or whatever: "And now, heeere's Johnny." He might by professional necessity drop his accustomed sneer to remind us five minutes daily that he's not such a bad guy after all.

The Mutual network should know better. Journalistic credibility is one issue here and public accountability is another. To paraphrase a former White House domestic adviser, John Ehrlichman's wisdom won't even play in Peoria now.

Economic game plan self-defeating

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Ford is engaging in sleight of hand. His economic proposals give and they take away—leaving us where we started. Our tax cuts would be balanced off by higher-cost light and heat for our homes, gasoline for our cars and food for our tables. Almost all prices would inevitably rise.

The White House proposals may cut out dependency on foreign oil—if adopted. They won't spur recovery.

Mr. Ford's advisers, of course, are convinced that if industry and consumers are forced to pay ridiculously high prices for oil, gas and electricity, they will find ways of using energy efficiently. If we conserve enough by these means, the argument runs, higher energy prices will not inflate living expenses appreciably.

Now this is excellent reasoning, in theory. Like Mr. Ford's men, I know of the as-yet uncompleted studies which seem to indicate some major American firms, by concentrating on conservation this past year, have cut their fuel use while raising output. Selected home owners have reduced fuel bills significantly by adding insulation in their attics and turning down thermostats.

But the industrial examples, at least, are not typical. Normally, they involve large concerns with great sums of research and investment. One such company has the funds to fly airplanes with infrared heat-seeking devices over its factories to learn first-hand the source of heat losses.

The greatest fuel waste is in small industry. These operators have neither the capital nor the means of acquiring the capital to pay for the devices required to save significant amounts of coal, gas and electricity. When capital is available, it costs too much, thus: adds excessively to current operating expenses, even with fast depreciation allowances figured in. Never mind that in the long run some of this equipment would save enough fuel to pay for itself. In these difficult times, small industries living from hand to mouth must think of today.

Worse yet, in all too many cases the major benefits from fuel-saving investments come in large-scale operations and thus only marginally benefit the small producer economically.

High fuel prices will encourage new construction techniques for factories, office buildings, apartments, homes. That won't help today's owners.

A ham-fisted across-the-board rise in the price of energy would thus drive a good many small firms out of business, concentrating more industrial output in the giants.

And those industries and other businesses with the most political clout will get special concessions from Congress and the White House, further distorting industrial and agricultural production.

Ironically, this administration has consistently refused to push production and the easy-credit sale of low-cost devices for conserving energy in homes and factories.

It is only possible for house holders and industrial firms to invest in energy-saving gadgets on a wide scale if interest rates are low and long-range loans available. But the heavy government borrowing which will result from the anticipated $30 billion to $40 billion deficit in the 1976 fiscal year budget surely will set money costs climbing at some point this year or next.

We've had too many of these simplistic over-all solutions. What's called for now is a point-by-point attack on energy waste and high prices.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—It was an acknowledged fact the Democrats would elect a speaker of the Illinois House, the question was when.

After William D. Redmond, D-Bensonville, got the post on the 93rd ballot, we talked with State Rep. Joseph B. Ebbesen, R-DeKalb, about what he thought of the new speaker and things in general.

"I know of nothing to discredit Redmond, he is a very well-liked guy and I believe he will cooperate with Republicans," was Ebbesen's first response.

The DeKalb legislator said Redmond is well liked by Gov. Walker and he is close to Chicago.

Since talking to the state representative the news has come out Redmond appointed Gerald Shea, a Chicago Democrat and a recognized Mayor Richard Daley spokesman, as majority leader.

Ebbesen predicted the Democrats are so fractionalized over the fight to elect a speaker that "I doubt any major legislation can be expected to be passed."

He also said the Democratic majority would continue to be pressured to line up with the governor or the mayor.

"The governor and members of the majority party really put pressure on House members during the speakership race."

"I've never seen anything quite like it."

"When Gov. Walker took office he said the 'old politics' is out, but just look what has happened since and especially in the last 10 days and you will realize it is politics as usual from the governor's office," the Republican charged.

Ebbesen expressed satisfaction at the solidarity of GOPs in refusing to take part in electing a speaker.

"We held together really well and it was extremely difficult in the face of pressure particularly from the Choate faction," the 37th District senior representative observed.

The DeKalb Republican noted Redmond's pledge was to run the House fairly to everyone so all the people's elective representatives will be heard and to avoid the last minute logjam which always occurs at the end of a session.

"Bills come down to us like confetti during those last days and we have no way of knowing what is going on or what is in the legislation, we are expected to act upon," described Ebbesen.

The second term legislator said he thought Redmond will attempt to get some of this reformed.

He also criticized the practice of sending a bill to a joint legislative commission to work out disagreement between House and Senate bills and have 10 people change the wording and meaning of the legislation and send it back for approval without debate.

"I would require a joint committee report be held for 10 days before the House or Senate are asked to act on the agreed bill," he said.

Ebbesen recalled the flap which the governor's office set off over the pension reform bill of which Sen. David Shapiro was chief sponsor but which had an amendment attached to it in joint committee and when it came back Sen. Shapiro could do nothing but vote against the bill he had introduced.

"My plan would prevent any re-run of such a thing like that," predicted Ebbesen.

The House member also called an elimination of the proxy vote practiced by Senate committee whereby the chairman can come to a committee meeting "with a fist full of proxies and have no senators attending."

"After hearing anyone who testifies at the committee hearing, the chairman casts his vote and the proxies and whatever those persons who made statements at the committee went for naught."

"It's like the senators are saying, 'I've made up my mind, don't confuse me with any facts,'" concluded Ebbesen.

About how Republicans feel about being overwhelmed by 101 Democrats compared to 76 in their ranks, Ebbesen replied "There was an excellent attitude among us until the seven Republican crossover."

He said the GOP will have from 68 to 70 hard core members who will be working to restructure "our position for the elections two years from now."

Finally Ebbesen commented, "It's bad news for the Democrats with a 101 members on the team which needed only 89 votes to elect a speaker had to dip into our ranks."

"I've never seen anything like it before, but I'm glad it's over," he said.

We hope the heavy Democratic majority can do better working on legislation than getting together on a speaker.

We can also petition the Daley-Walker-Choate forces to not continue to push private interest ahead of the interest of the people of Illinois.

CIA: one point is perfectly clear

By DON OAKLEY

Whatever the extent of the CIA's reported surveillance of U.S. civilians—which is what President Ford's much-criticized blue-ribbon investigating panel is supposed to find out—there should be no question about the illegality of any such spying.

The "vague and loosely worded" 1947 statute creating the Central Intelligence Agency is the kind of stuff lawyers feed on. Yet it is clear that domestic intelligence activities by the agency are not authorized by federal law.

So states The Research Group, Inc., a legal research service for attorneys.

"We have researched the enabling legislation governing the CIA's operations, and while the statutes are vague and even loosely worded in parts, still the only interpretation possible is that the agency is barred from domestic intelligence activities," says James L. Arnold of The Research Group's Charlottesville, Va., office.

A federal law of July 26, 1947 gave the CIA power "to correlate and evaluate intelligence relating to national security" but stressed that "the agency shall have no police, subpoena, law-enforcement powers or internal security functions."

Although the original law has been amended a number of times over the years, no expansion of the CIA's power was ever authorized. In fact, a 1949 amendment specifically limited the agency's scope to "the security of foreign intelligence activities of the United States."

Furthermore, says The Research Group, the CIA's exclusion from domestic affairs is noted in various other federal public health and welfare laws.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

I would like to say something to the article, the late Oscar Lindquist wrote under Voice of the People Oct. 8, 1974, since no one made a comment on it. I was shocked over his sudden death and am deeply sorry, not having answered him earlier, when alive, when he stated "Women really are meddlesome, unfaithful, strictly a pain in the neck" as my prepared reply to it, was laying in my drawer up to now.

Unfortunately he picked only some bad examples of the Bible, but left out the many great women mentioned in it, who served as shining examples to the world of women and those today, occupying important positions (see your special issue in the Dixon Evening Telegraph "World of Sauk Valley Women, printed Aug. 24, 1974) that were once only outlined strictly for men. Every story has two sides and men are not all angels either.

Sarah, wife of Abraham, very devoted to him was blessed by the Lord as "Mother of Nations." Rachel and Leah are mothers of 12 tribes of Israel. Their qualities and the beautiful story how Jacob served his uncle, Laban, seven years for each of his daughters is well known to all who read the Bible, which is full of praise for all the women, that played an important role, during their lifetime.

Rebekah, mother of twins, Esau and Jacob, had enchanted Eliezer, the servant of Abraham, whom he sent out, placing the responsibility on him to choose a wife for his son Isaac. He was attracted by her courtesy and kindness. God had established his covenant with Abraham and his son, in which Rebekah was to be a participant in that covenant. Rebekah was a mother, who pondered deeply over her son's destiny. She recognized the secular bent of the first born, Esau, and the priestly mold of the last-born, Jacob, who worshiped at the altar of God, while his brother Esau spent his time in hunting and other pleasures.

Esau had given up voluntarily his birthright as the first-born for bread and pottage of lentils and Rebekah had planned how Jacob, the last-born and not Esau, the first-born, could receive his father's blessing. She could not picture Esau as a leader of her people. All her life it is said in the Bible, Rebekah had never wavered in purpose, even when she left her homeland for another country. Although Rebekah's action in deceiving her blind husband, was morally indefensible it says, her motives were pure and she was willing to assume all the responsibilities for this, the burden as a mother when Jacob feared that he will bring the curse upon him, deceiving his father. But his mother replied: "upon me be thy curse my son." She was a woman of sympathy, foresight and favor.

Deborah was the wife of the obscure Lapidoth, she became a woman of great power. She awakened the people in a period of lethargy. With Barak, she led them to victory. The martial song, celebrating her triumph is one of the greatest in history. She was the only woman in the Bible who was placed at the height of political power by the common consent of the people. She was like Joan of Arc, who 27 centuries later rode in front of the French and led them to victory. Her people had also discovered, that she was a prophet.

Ruth is the central figure in the Book of Ruth, one of the most lovable women in the Bible. And her abiding love embraces the person you would least expect it to, her mother-in-law, Naomi, leaving her own land and people, going with her to Bethlehem. Ruth, beloved by all, because she was so lovable, had proved that love can lift one out of poverty and obscurity and bring happiness to all whom it touches, even penetrate the barriers of race.

Hannah, consecrated mother prays for a son. When Samuel was born, she lovingly tended him in his formative years, as she prepares him for Temple service, probably inspired Mary, Mother of Jesus, who lived almost 12 centuries later.

Esther was chosen to be wife of King Ahasuerus of Persia. She succeeded Queen Vashti, who has been deposed. She averts a general massacre of her race planned by the wicked Haman, prime minister. Esther's courage became the dominating factor in the salvation of her people.

Golda Meier, former Prime Minister of Israel, the most admired woman in the world. I could go on and on.

And not to forget the role of a mother in general, caring for her baby until the child becomes an adult, ready to leave home, housewife, lover and often breadwinner, when a father died. A mother's thoughtfulness and tender love will never die as long as her heart is beating, yet some times forgotten, when old and helpless. The sleepless nights she spends on the bedside of her sick baby. The forgiving wife, whose husband has a drinking problem, or is unfaithful, trying to save the marriage for the sake of her children, when still small. Mothers indeed are glorified by song composers all over the world.

What for the Irish is their Mother Machree, is to the Jewish people My Yiddische Momme, both touching in their melodies and words. We all know the story of Al Jolson, who is famous for singing Mammy, Mammy. Those songs will never die.

So let's give three cheers to our world of wonderful women, to whom glory is due.

Sincerely,
Selma Levy

To be his own publicist or not to be

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA)—Lewis J. Stadlen is the most anonymous star on Broadway.

He doesn't want it that way, but his hands are pretty well tied.

Stadlen, the black-haired, slight, 27-year-old actor starring in Hal Prince's successful revival of the musical "Candide," explains.

"They've been playing down individual participation in the show," he says referring to the press agent's strategy and his own absence from the usual publicity rounds. "They feel that 'Hair' worked with a certain amount of anonymity and they've told me if I want any public relations, I have to do it on my own."

"But I don't want to pay somebody to write a lot of lies and a lot of things I don't care about," he continues. "I don't have a press agent because they've muddled and polluted what it is to be an actor. For instance, I think going on a telethon that you don't care about because you're getting exposure is nonsense."

"I don't want to turn myself inside out because of my need to succeed and yet," he shrugs, "I want publicity."

For almost two hours at each performance, Stadlen does everything but turn himself inside out. He sings and dances and jungles three roles expertly in full view of the audience, in a setting that takes him over ramps and drawbridges and up and down the equivalent, he says, of 30 flights of stairs.

Clive Barnes said of him, he "seemed everywhere at once, and everywhere he was he was brilliant."

Stadlen got similar notices for his first Broadway role in 1969, when he was 23.

"I auditioned at an open call against 1,000 others for the role of Groucho in the musical, 'Minnie's Boys.' My father, an actor who specializes in voice-over commercials, taught me that in order to win an audition, you have to do something to wake people up."

"I thought the thing that made me love Groucho was that he made fun of everything. So I took an old song, 'It's Only a Shanty in Old Shanty Town,' and started writing Groucho-like puns for it. I had a terrific accompanist and I played against him. I began by saying, 'Maestro,' (in perfect imitation of Groucho), and he started to play. Then I said, 'you may not play like Beethoven, but you sure have his ear.' It became almost a nightclub act."

Despite great personal reviews (the show itself failed) and interviews in Sardi's "every single moment," Stadlen was worried.

"The thing that would plague me was that people thought, maybe this is all this kid can do. I thought maybe this is all I can do. And what would be next?"

"Yet," he says, "I felt for the first time in my life I had done something tangible, mixing with the dream. So much of my fantasies about being in the theater were just that—all I had was a feeling and a drive which at one moment would say, I am capable of being the greatest actor that ever lived, and a second later, how do I know that?"

A native New Yorker who, as a rebellious child "walked through 12 grades of school like a zombie," Stadlen was captivated by his father's theatrical life. "I was even turned on by thoughts of failure in the theater," he laughs. "It was romantic to me to meet a cab driver who was an actor."

He still gets excited every time that curtain goes up, but the best of all possible worlds for him is the movies.

"There's something expansive and personal and beautiful about the theater but it's truer about the movies. On stage, you become expert on how to simulate emotions. You soon realize that you can't do it as best as you would like every night, so you develop a way of making people believe you're going through a gut reaction when you're not. On film, you can't get away with that. You must give them real, spontaneous feelings."

And the only actor doing that consistently now, Stadlen says, is Jack Nicholson.

"He just thrills me. He's so complex and such a sexy guy in such an unorthodox way. With Nicholson, you're seeing a lot of the man up there and it takes a lot of courage to be oneself. I'd really like to get up in front of a camera and see if what that camera captures is all that attractive. The only thing of my own I've liked in films was a 20-second sequence in 'Serpico' in which I play a morally vacuous person." (Stadlen played the role of the mayor's aide whose help Serpico sought.)

Stadlen describes himself as angry, passionate and intelligent (his favorite pastime out of town is checking out the editorial policies of the local papers). But there's humor in his makeup, too, and an awareness of the insanity of the human condition.

At one point in "Candide," the young hero asks despairingly why the world was created. And Stadlen replies offstage, "To drive men mad!"

"To me," he says flatly, "that line is the play. I don't care how the audience reacts to anything else in the play. When they don't scream at that line or nudge each other or say, 'Aha,' they may as well be watching 'The Music Man.'"

Kids' films taking the familiar credit card route

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—This is the sophomore year for Ely and Edie Landau's American Film Theater. Whether or not the program goes on to graduation depends largely on how it does this year.

Last year, its freshman year, was experimental. And, Landau says, it was a critical success but not a financial one.

"We have not yet proven," he says, "that subscription movie-going is a viable financial concept. The acceptance was good but not huge."

There were eight in the first season's schedule, but only five this year, including "The Man In the Glass Booth," "The Maids" and "Jacques Brel."

What's happened to last season's eight films? Landau says they've gone back into the vaults and that's where they'll stay.

"All the pictures had four performances," Landau says. "I made a semicommitment that they would be re-released every three years. The negative is real estate to me."

"Ultimately, we will rent it out—to TV, finally. First is the subscription showing. Then general release. Then schools and colleges. Then foreign release. And only after all that will we rent it to TV."

The Landaus are currently embarking on another major project which they call Children's Film Theater. They are making 10 films for children from ages 7 to 11. These are all new stories—no classics, no fairy tales—and Edie Landau says these will be sold via credit cards in theaters.

It used to be that men's fashion was virtually dictated by Hollywood. No more, John Weitz, the New York expert whose latest book is "Man In Charge," says, faultily, "The film business has finished fashion."

He believes that today the models most young American men follow are not actors but basketball and tennis players.

"There's nobody on TV who is a model the public wants to emulate," he says. "Everybody on TV is a policeman."

As for movies with fashionable figures—"There's not been a single movie about a fashionable man since Cary Grant's day," Weitz says.

Nevertheless, he admits that kids follow movie trends. He says that when "Easy Rider" came out, "thousands of kids transformed their hair-dos and started riding motorcycles."

But the public dresses like its heroes and today its heroes are football players.

"They are the prime offenders," Weitz says. "They have no background but lots of money. They feel secure—the security of the crude." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

British Columbia waterways scene of adventure

"Through the Gates of Hell"—raw adventure—the account of how seven men, in three rubber boats, risk their lives in conquering the treacherous waterways of British Columbia, will be presented on "Other People, Other Places," Saturday, at 1 p.m., on Channel 9.

In their own way, they write a page of history—becoming the first expedition to navigate, from north to south, the entire 1,500 miles of dangerous rivers, streams and lakes that stretch across the province.

The journey is far longer, and tougher, than any previously taken by the men. The expedition starts with a battle against the 200 miles of currents up the Rocky Mountain Trench; it ends with the challenge of 700 miles down the River Fraser.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I heard about Lucille Ball getting a divorce from her husband. Is this true? Did she get remarried? Tell me all about it.— CINDY NEGREY, LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, Canada.

It's funny—or sad—how rumors get started and sweep around the world like a modern-day version of the plague. No, Cindy, it's not true. As far as anybody in Hollywood knows, Lucy and her husband, Gary Morton, are still a very happy and contented couple.

DEAR DICK: Why don't the networks have the news women and other women on TV at least comb and part their hair? They should at least look neat before they face us. If they cannot comb their hair, they should get a wig. Agree?— B.N.J., Chatom, Ala.

Sometimes these girls spend hours in the makeup room just to achieve that windblown look you hate so much. It just goes to show you that one person's messy is another person's gorgeous. I do agree with you, but you know me—I think the Wet Look is much nicer than the Dry Look.

DEAR DICK: Will you please tell me if the Cathy Hawn who married Dean Martin is the same Hawn who used to be on Laugh-In. I say she isn't and a friend says she is.— JANE MARTIN, Chattanooga, Tenn.

You win again, Jane. There are three different Hawns—Cathy, now Mrs. Martin; Goldie, the actress who used to be on Laugh-In, and the old one that blows at midnight!

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who will play the part of January Wayne in the movie, "Once Is Not Enough," from Jacqueline Susann's book? And when will it be released?— M.L., New Orleans, La.

Deborah Raffin is the lucky girl with the big part. You may have seen her in "Forty Carats" and "The Dove"—she's going to be a big star, I think. The film is scheduled for release around Easter.

DEAR DICK: Our family enjoyed the Hec Ramsey series so much. What happened to that portion of NBC's Sunday Mystery Movie?— MRS. L. BRYSON, Roseburg, Ore.

It's off the air, as you know. There was a difference of opinion between the network and the star Richard Boone. NBC wanted to continue the series as it was. Boone wanted it to be changed to a one-hour weekly series. The stalemate was resolved by dropping it entirely.

DEAR DICK: Was Burt Reynolds' part in "The Longest Yard" written expressly for him?— JANE REINHART, Emmaus, Pa.

Not exactly. Producer Al Ruddy started the story seven years ago. There were several screenwriters who tried it and finally Tracy Keenan Wynn wrote the final screenplay. When he had the screenplay he wanted, he decided there was only one actor—Reynolds—who was right for the part. And it looks like a good decision. The picture should gross $30 million.

DEAR DICK: Has Farrah Fawcett, the wife of Lee Majors, ever been married before? If so, who was she married to?— IRITA TEW, Mobile, Ala.

No, her first husband is Lee.

Burns or Benny . . .

Nobody knows how great he was

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — It was the day after they buried Jack Benny. George Burns, his friend of more than a half-century, had broken down when he tried to deliver a eulogy at the funeral services.

But now he felt like talking. It wasn't easy, still. Tears came softly to his eyes and his naturally creaky voice broke from time to time. But still there seemed to be almost a compulsion to speak of his — and our — great friend.

Burns had gone to his office that morning as usual. He seemed to feel a need to resume his ordinary routine. The office was cold. Burns sat in his overcoat, clutching it around him and shivering. He lit up an enormous cigar.

At first we talked of other things. He has a new record album out, a two-record set selling for $25 that he hopes will become a collector's item. It was recorded when he made a one-man concert appearance at the Shubert Theater here.

But the subject both of us wanted to discuss — Jack Benny — was always there. When the talked veered around to the current state of comedy, Burns plunged in.

"Good, honest jokes live forever," he said, exhaling a fogbank of blue smoke. "Look at Jack Benny. Nobody knew how great he was until he passed away. I knew him for 55 years but even I didn't know how great he was until he was gone."

He wiped a tear away from his eye.

"There was something magic about Jack. Everything he created — the old Maxwell car, the 'stingy' jokes, 'Jell-o Again,' — all that lived for all of us as though it were real.

"The pauses. The look. The nerve he had when he used to go next door to the Colmans to borrow a cup of sugar.

"Even if he told a bad joke, he made it work for him. I remember one show when he told a bad joke and he said it couldn't be a bad joke because a great writer, Norman Krasna, had written it. So he told it again. And the next week he repeated the whole thing and, within a few weeks, he had a whole thing going about that bad joke.

"As Bob Hope said at the funeral, when Jack Benny got on the stage, he owned it — and he did."

Another pause. Another tear. Another big drag on the cigar, perhaps for reasons of security.

"When I met him, he was already a great monologist. His opening joke was this. He'd come out holding his violin and he'd just stand there. A long pause. Already he was a master of the long pause. Then he'd say to the orchestra leader, 'How is the show up to now?' And the orchestra leader would say, 'Fine.' 'Well,' Jack would say, 'I'll stop that.' "

Another puff.

"He was a gentle man. And his humor was as gentle as he was.

"He used to use his violin the way I use this cigar — as a prop, as a kind of comedian's security blanket. But he tried to get rid of it. He wanted to be able to stand up on the stage without it. I remember the first time he tried to go on without it. It was in Schenectady, New York. He told two jokes. Nobody laughed. So he quick borrowed a violin from the orchestra and he was all right after that.

"He never said a mean thing. Jack's idea of being mean was this. Once we saw a certain comic work. I asked him what he thought of the comic. Jack said, 'Well, he's great but I just can't laugh at him.' "

"Without Jack Benny, the show will go on, but there will be a big hole in it. It just won't be as good. There's one good thing, though — Jack Benny will stay alive as long as any of us live."

That was the eulogy George Burns was too choked up to deliver at the funeral. It all spilled out of him, as though he had to say it.

Burns himself — he'll be 79 this month — is in good health. He takes pretty good care of himself.

He doesn't work very hard any more. He says he will never retire but he's taking it easier. He still does some TV guest shots and speaks at a lot of dinners and he's in his office every day.

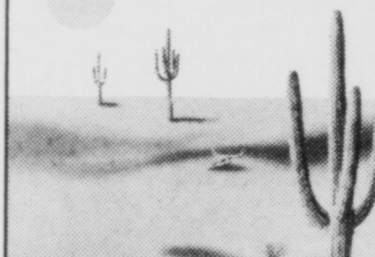

But his working day, ordinarily, is brief — from 10:30 a.m. until noon. Then he goes over to the Hillcrest Country Club, has lunch and plays bridge for a couple of hours every afternoon.

"Then I go home and have a nap," he says.

Even at such a tragic time, the Burns humor cannot help but sneak out. We were talking about young comedians.

"What do you mean by 'young?' To me at my age, Don Rickles is a kid. Milton Berle is a juvenile and Shecky Greene is just getting started."

Hollybound-bound Simon bids Broadway good-bye

NEWYORK (NEA)— Go ahead. Be nice to a playwright. Give him an unequaled run of hits on Broadway—one a year for 14 years. Laugh at his jokes, smile at his ingenuity, bask in his compassion for the human condition. And what is he doing? Selling his elegant townhouse in the East Sixties and moving wife, two daughters—even his mother—to California. That's gratitude for you.

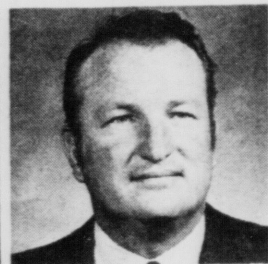

Neil Simon, of course, doesn't see it that way. He doesn't feel he's abandoning the audience that has come to rely on him for surcease from New York in particular, and life in general. He needs some surcease himself.

"After 14 years and 14 plays," he says, "I get the feeling I'm doing the same thing with my life."

Writing basically for the same audience and the same critics. Worrying about their reactions. And finding it increasingly difficult, after 14 years, to "think of unexplored areas" to write about for the stage.

"I wouldn't want to go through it again for anything next year," he says.

So it's off to movieland, to write for larger, younger audiences; to work with his wife, actress Marsha Mason ("The screenplay after next will be for her, called 'Clark Gable Slept Here'"); and to "live in a warmer climate. A safer one? "No," he says firmly in his mild way, "there is no such thing."

That's it. That's why it's difficult to accept this pleasant, unassuming, moonfaced man—as the life behind characters who honk neurotically and explode with life's exasperations. He seems able to confront reality and come away intact.

No nervous tics. No hysteria. Hardly the creator of a Felix Unger or a Joe Benjamin, the main character in Simon's latest, and possibly last, play, "God's Favorite."

Joe is Simon's version of Job, a millionaire manufacturer who refuses to renounce God and gets hit with everything: bursitis, gout, tennis elbow and the usual flood, famine and havoc.

"What did I mean by the play? It took me a whole play to say it," Simon smiles. "In a way, I become everybody when I write a play, so I was the leading character who put up with everything because of his faith in God. I was the wife who wanted him to give up. I was God's messenger who just wanted to get his job done. We all go through some of those attitudes."

"But I meant, I think, exactly what Walter Kerr said in his review: that sometimes you have to point up how preposterous things are when we take them so seriously."

A thoughtful, family man who wears glasses and speaks with a New York accent, Simon likes to sketch and do water colors ("I love to do scenes of old New York buildings"), likes to read biographies because "the lives of people—Joey Gallo and Truman, for instance—fascinate me," likes to watch sports and old movies on television ("More care goes into the making of a movie so it's more satisfying than a situation comedy"), and loves to write.

"I like being able to go upstairs to my study and spend four or five hours working. I never find it a lonely business like some writers."

But then he spent 10 years collaborating with other writers on television shows, so the isolation is understandably satisfying.

So is the polishing. He's a craftsman who only stops re-writing because he has to.

"When I go into rehearsal with a script," he says, "it's 60 per cent of what will get on the stage. You can't rewrite forever, and a play's finished because it's opened. I know from past experience that it's never going to be right."

Occasionally, Simon speaks at colleges ("The word 'lecture' frightens me," he says, cringing. "It's just question and answer periods"), and what he passes on to young playwrights is basically the lay of the land.

"I tell them about the pitfalls and the joys. Those who want it badly enough will push aside the pitfalls. I was discouraged a great deal in the beginning by the business," he says. "But my older brother Danny's encouragement was enormous. He told me I had talent so often that I gradually believed it. And when I started having some success, I said well, there's something to work with."

Another truth suddenly comes to mind. "You know," he says, "there are a lot of people who don't really want things. I don't mean success or material things. Relationships, or health, for example. If you want to be healthy, you will be."

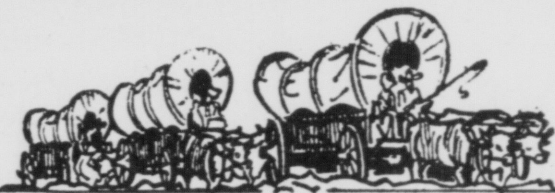

The opportunities, despite what anybody says, are always there. "Nothing comes your way," he says. "It goes by and you have to reach out and grab."

Color views atop Everest

"Americans on Everest," the National Geographic Special which will be presented on Channel 9 Sunday, at 5:30 p.m., will show the first color movies ever made atop Everest and on the treacherous high ridges.

The triumphant feats of the American Mount Everest Expedition rank with the greatest of the century. A team of 19 Americans and one Britisher, led by Norman G. Dyhrenfurth, challenged death and danger to put six men and the United States flag on the summit of the world's loftiest mountain, 29,028 feet.

The National Geographic Society provided funds to the American Mount Everest Expedition to make a documentary film for television so that Americans could share and take pride in its accomplishments.

Society President Melville Bell Grosvenor said, "Thanks largely to the skill and determination of Mr. Dyhrenfurth, the expedition leader and chief cinematographer, the color motion picture is superb — truly worthy of the earth's superlative mountain."

"Americans on Everest" was written by author James Ramsey Ullman, a member of the expedition, and narrated by Orson Welles.

Rumors put to rest on end to Mister Rogers

Fred Rogers of the popular PBS children's series "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" is distressed to find so many people seem to think he is "going off the air."

"That simply is not so," Rogers said, "unless of course a PBS community doesn't want our series."

The rumor has apparently arisen because Rogers has announced that he would not be producing any entirely new programs this coming year and has put forth his concept of a "library" of children's programs.

"Apparently we are all very sensitive about 'reruns' which, understandably, harks back to the very early days of public television when all stations had to rerun programs because there simply wasn't enough money to produce new ones," Rogers said.

"But let's look at that for a minute," he continued. "Actually, many of those programs were repeated for two very good reasons—they were very good and they were worth seeing again. Furthermore repeating a program or a series allowed people to see them who had been unable to do so the first time around.

"That policy was valid and helped public television to grow and reach more and more people.

"Suppose we consider those same two reasons and apply them to what we are proposing for the next few years," Rogers went on.

"First, we feel that we have covered the salient points in child development—feeling good about one's self, separation and return, individual differences, safety, which is a concept of self-worth, growing and trying and not being afraid to make a mistake.

"Second, our programs are mainly for the very young child, and our audience changes for the most part about every three years. In other words, each year one-third of our audience is introduced to the series for the first time.

New farm program debuts

"The National Farm Digest," television's first national weekly farm program, will have three distinguished guests on Saturday telecast on Channel 9 from 7:30 to 8 a.m. Included are: William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, interviewed on location in New Orleans at the Farm Bureau's recent 56th annual convention. Orion Samuelson, host of this program and WGN's farm service director, interviewed Mr. Kuhfuss regarding the current attitudes and policies of the American Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm organization;

Richard Bell, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture, also interviewed by Orion at the same convention about the outlook for soybean producers in regard to demand and prices for 1975;

Bill Jones, executive vice president, National Livestock Feeders Association of Omaha, Nebraska. Orion talked with Mr. Jones via telephone (with a film crew in Omaha) concerning the consequences of the bankruptcy of American Beef Packers, Inc., one of the nation's largest meat packers, and what's being done to keep something like this from happening again.

"The National Farm Digest" is a unique program offering viewers a total information service, national in scope, about America's most important and timely business, Agribusiness.

Golden Globe awards Sunday

The most popular stars of motion pictures and television traditionally participating in one of Hollywood's most spectacular events — the 32nd Annual Golden Globe Awards — will be televised on Channel 9 Sunday, at 10:30 p.m. to midnight.

The first major media awards ceremony of the season, staged by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, The Golden Globes attracts the most important names in the entertainment field yearly, from all corners of the world. Some notables attending last year's ceremonies include: Marilyn and Alan Bergman, William Peter Blatty, Peter Bogdanovich, David Carradine, Mike Connors, Ellen Corby, June Haver, Kate Jackson, Jack Lemmon, Michael Learned, Harry Mancini, Mary Tyler Moore, Jim Nabors, Jack Nicholson, Dick Powell Jr., Cybil Shepard, Barbara Segal, Jean Stapleton, James Stewart, Sally Strothers, Loretta Swit, Francois Truffaut, William Wyler and Robert Young.

John Davidson will host the 1975 Golden Globes, the only awards ceremony honoring achievement in both motion pictures and television. This year's Miss Golden Globe is 17-year-old Melanie Griffith, currently featured with Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward in Warner Brother's "The Drowning Pool." Melanie is the daughter of actress Tippi Hedren.

Richard Dunlap, producer-director of ten Oscar shows and five Emmy telecasts, has been signed for the 1975 Golden Globe Awards. Nelson Riddle and his orchestra will provide the musical accompaniment.

Miss Plunkett, John Lahman exchange marriage vows

Miss Deborah Sue Plunkett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Eugene Plunkett, Eaton, Ohio, became the bride of John Robinson Lahman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robin Lahman, Franklin Grove, in a candle-light wedding held Jan. 4 in the Eaton Church of the Brethren.

The double-ring wedding was performed at 6:30 p.m. by the bride's grandfather, the Rev. Glenn C. Rust, who was assisted by the Rev. Ellis G. Guthrie, pastor of the church. The two ministers performed similar duties when the bride's parents were married.

Musicians
Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Joan Timmons, Beaver-creek, Ind., organist; Miss Kimberly Timmons, Beaver-creek, pianist; Marty Eyer, Eaton, soloist, and David Sollenberger, Annville, Pa., guitarist.

For the ceremony, the church altar was banked with arrangements of white chrysanthemums and was centered by a Bible and candles which were lighted by the couple during the service. The altar was flanked by nine-branched candelabra trimmed with bouquets of white pompons, red carnations, foliage and white bows, and bow-trimmed hurricane lights were placed in the sanctuary windows.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white velvet and Venetian lace. The gown's empire bodice was fashioned with bishop sleeves ending in lace cuffs and a V-shaped neckline edged with lace. The gown's demi-bell skirt was accented by a wateau train trimmed with lace, and matching lace edged her chapel-length mantilla of imported illusion. She wore a gold cross necklace, and she carried her mother's white Bible with a cascade of white carnations, red rosebuds and baby's breath.

The couple removed two white rosebuds from the bouquet and each one presented a rose to the other's mother symbolizing the union of the two families.

Miss Beth Plunkett, Eaton, was her sister's maid of honor, and serving as bridesmaids were Miss Mary Plunkett, Eaton, also a sister of the bride; Miss Mary Lahman and Miss Barbara Lahman, Franklin Grove, the bridegroom's sisters; Miss Jane Jones, Leo, Ind., and Mrs. Renita Elwington, Columbus, Ohio.

"They were full-length gowns of red velvet styled with empire bodices featuring high necklines, Juliet sleeves and back-bows. They wore pearl pendants, their gifts from the bride, and the nosegays they carried combined white carnations, red starflowers and baby's breath tied with white velvet cord.

Identically-styled red velvet frocks were worn by the flower girls, Miss Tammy Rust and Miss DeeDee Rust, Strauburg, Pa., and by the ringbearer, Miss Tanya Theen, Lafayette, Ind. The flower girls carried white lace baskets filled with red carnation petals, and Miss Theen carried the rings on a heart-shaped white satin pillow edged with streamers.

David Lahman, Franklin Grove, was his brother's best man, and serving as groomsmen were Daniel Plunkett, Eaton, brother of the bride; Robert Jasper, Franklin Grove; Terry Buchanan, Kettering, Ohio; Daniel Patterson, Dayton, Ohio, and Robert Payne, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Reception
A reception in the church social rooms followed the ceremony when hostesses were Mrs. Joan Parks, Mrs. Norma Theen and Mrs. Shirley Rust, aunts of the bride; Miss Becky Kile, Mrs. Barbara Wehrly, Mrs. Joy Moore, Miss Cyndi Snider, Miss Jean Eller and Miss Donna Young.

Guests were registered by Miss Pamela Parks, and in charge of the gift table were Miss Patti Parks, Miss Becky Parks and Miss Ruth Jasper. The reception was catered by members of the church Fellowship Class.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Antiquity House Inn on Jan. 3, and a reception honoring the newlyweds was held last Saturday in the Franklin Grove Church of the Brethren. They are presently residing at 201½ N. Mill St., North Manchester, Ind.

The bride, a graduate of Eaton High School, will graduate this month from Manchester College, where her husband, a graduate of Franklin Center High School, recently completed his college studies.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN R. LAHMAN

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I don't expect you to print my letter, but just writing it will be marvelous therapy for me. It's to my "friend," and to all the people like her who confuse "friendship" with just plain cloddishness, or to put it bluntly, unbelievable guts.

Dear You Know Who You Are: When I answered the door wearing rubber gloves with a toilet brush in my hand, you asked if I was busy. I said yes, but you walked in anyway and chirped, "Put some coffee on, will you? My maid is cleaning from top to bottom today and I can't stand the way she does things. She makes me nervous."

Then as you drank my coffee (which you pronounced "too weak"), you informed me that my walls should be painted a darker color because "the dirt shows." You also told me I should have bought "better" carpeting because the cheap stuff looks OK in the store, but after a few months it "mats."

Then you told me I look so much better with makeup I should NEVER be without it. (To clean toilets?!!)

Stay in your own house, "friend." I'd tell you to your face, but I haven't got the guts. Besides, our husbands are golf buddies and I don't want to make waves. So please go somewhere else if your maid makes you nervous. You make ME sick.—Had It

Dear Had: Here's your letter, and you'd better expect "waves" because the details are unmistakable. "Friend" will certainly know you mean her.

I cheerfully accept the blame or the thanks—for whatever happens after this letter appears in print—and I hope you are prepared for the consequences.

Dear Ann Landers: Ten months ago, my husband told me he was leaving me and our three children for another woman. I said, "All right, Jim, if that's what you want, go ahead."

Four days later he came back home, said he loved only me, and begged to be forgiven. I agreed, provided he behaved himself. He swore he would.

The following week, the little tramp (twice divorced by husbands who caught her in adultery) tried to kill herself. Jim became panicky and moved back with her.

Our children have started to suck their thumbs and wet their beds. They have nightmares regularly. I am a nervous wreck. Jim says he wants to come home but if he leaves the tramp again she will kill herself and it will be on his conscience forever. Please help me.—Nyack, N.Y.

Dear Nyack: What conscience? Tell "Bullfeathers" he owes you and his children more than he owes the tramp. If he refuses to come home where he belongs, see a lawyer and make it legal.

Dear Ann Landers: That "New-Look Bride" who plans to Xerox her thank-you notes and distribute them at her wedding (rolled up and tied with a yellow ribbon) was enough to make me write my first letter to a newspaper.

Too bad the unsuspecting guests don't have access to a crystal ball. They could then present the clod with a rolled-up message tied with a red ribbon saying, "Since you will be too busy to write me a thank-you note I will be too busy to shop for you. So let's just shake hands and say, 'Congratulations.'" Sign me—Glad I'm Not Invited

Dear Glad: You and at least 500 others.

Sweetening substitute

Inflation goes on and people must eat. Flavor of food remains vitally important no matter what the price and nutrition, of course, must be fulfilled.

Since the consumer's food budget has not gone up as prices have and in many homes there is either unemployment or the threat of it, eating habits may change.

What to do about sugar, for one example, is a great worry to millions of homemakers. The price of sweetness is out of sight for many. People are trying all manner of substitutes, from honey and artificial sweeteners to corn syrup.

Christine Pines, home economist in charge of consumer information for Best Foods, manufacturers of corn syrups, advises:

"Corn syrup, both the light and the darker kinds, is less sweet than sugar. It may leave a slight taste in the mouth. But it is excellent in certain dishes as a sweetener, such as brownies, certain cookies and particularly cakes, but not in everything.

"It is perfect in baked beans or as glazes for meats such as ham. It is great in certain beverages, particularly punches, and in some candies though not all. But I advise you when you are making your very special cake, the one you are famous for, to stick to sugar—despite its cost.

The Bermuda cup 'Bad conduct' or bad manners?

On Jan. 25, the world's bridge experts will meet in Bermuda to compete for the world championship of bridge. Oswald Jacoby, who is generally regarded as the best bridge player of modern times, will be on hand to comment on the play.

As an introduction to the tournament, Jacoby has written a series which explains what the competitors are up against this year—some very strong measures to prohibit cheating and unethical conduct.

By OSWALD JACOBY
(Last in a Series)

Forty years ago I was playing in a tournament in Chicago. I opened the bidding with three spades. The bidder on my left said, "I crack it." Everyone passed. It turned out that the doubler had spades. His partner, who left the double in, had six hearts. I asked why he had left the double in.

"When my partner said 'I crack it' I knew it was for penalty," he replied. "If he'd said 'double' I would have bid my hearts."

It was their first tournament. They had no idea they were doing anything wrong. They were delighted to accept an average score when the reasons were given.

This was an extreme case, but let's look at something that happens all the time. The bidding starts: one heart, one spade, three hearts, three spades, four hearts, four spades. So far everything is normal. One side has hearts, the other spades.

Now there is a long pause for thought and finally the next bidder doubles. He is saying that he expects to beat four spades, but at the same time he has told his partner that he hasn't too much confidence in his action.

In an unethical game he has also told his partner to bid five hearts unless he really wants to defend against four spades doubled. If he had doubled immediately after the four-spade call, he would have announced that he really wanted to penalize his opponents.

Ethical standards also cover play in the same respect. If you pause before the play of a card, it should be because you have a problem, not because you are playing a singleton and trying to deceive the opponents.

The top experts get to know the mannerisms of their opponents. The late P. Hal Sims was renowned for his ability at this. He claimed when he had a two-way finesse for a queen he could always tell which player held it. One evening we decided to set Hal up.

The play came down to a guess as to which opponent held the queen of hearts. Hal studied awhile, glared at each opponent, reached over to dummy, pulled out the jack of hearts from the king-jack-10 and glared some more. One opponent had a card face-down on the table ready to play. The other was calmly lighting a cigarette. Hal was nonplussed.

"This is impossible," Hal finally said. "Both you pigeons hold the queen of hearts."

Sure enough, he was right. We had slipped an extra queen of hearts into the deck for the occasion.

High-grade cheating is hard to prove. Low-grade cheats get too greedy. Sometimes one hand is enough to prove skulduggery. An expert pair kept getting unusually good results. Directors started watching them, when finally one made a very successful opening lead. This could only be explained on the basis of illegal information. This one hand was enough to have them barred.

Program by Mr. Murphy to be sponsored by ACW

The Aglow Christian Women, an area organization, will sponsor an appearance by Willie Murphy, gospel singer, at 9:15 a.m. Tuesday in The Ramada Inn, Rock Falls, when a brunch will be served.

Reservations for the event are to be made by 11 a.m. Monday with Mrs. Clifford Schick, 288-1833, Mrs. Thelma Metz, 288-1002, or Mrs. Dennis Henderson, 652-4556, all of Dixon.

A soloist for 18 years with the Kathryn Kuhlman Concert Choir, Mr. Murphy has extended his ministry as an ambassador of music to churches of all denominations. His repertoire includes gospel hymns and arrangements from his four albums, and his organization, the Willie Murphy Evangelical Association, is headquartered in Anaheim, Calif. An adherent to charismatic teachings, he identifies his song ministry as being closely knit to Scripture enlightenment.

His talents as a soloist and minister have been praised by the Rev. Ralph Wilkerson, pastor of the Melodyland Christian Center in southern California, and by entertainer Pat Boone, who recently appeared with Mr. Murphy at a Christian rally in McCormick Place, Chicago.

A world traveler, Mr. Murphy recently completed a gospel singing itinerary that included appearances in Indonesia, Hong Kong, Singapore and Bombay.

Presbyterian UPW to meet

The UPW of the First Presbyterian Church will sponsor a "Fellowship Coffee" at 9 a.m. Monday in the church social hall, and all women of the church are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Vernon Brickley, president of the organization, will conduct a brief business meeting, and devotions will be given by Mrs. Joseph Ribble.

Another more expert pair was caught when someone broke their code of leads and was able to predict what leads they would make. That pair was just told not to play together again and has obeyed the dictum.

In 1965 Reese and Shapiro of the British team were accused of cheating in the world's championship. Reese was discovered holding his cards in a peculiar manner while his partner Shapiro held his pipe in the most unnatural positions. The captain of the British team believed the charges and the World Bridge Federation found them guilty. Later on the British Bridge League acquitted them because no one was able to prove conclusively what the signals meant.

The charges in the 1958 world championship matches against the Italians stemmed partly from the fact members of their team would hold their hands above their heads. Tobias Stone and members of the U.S. team felt they were signaling. Charges flared. Finally a group of experts found nothing too unusual in the bidding or the play.

Certainly, the Italians made some astounding bids and plays, but they also were found to have made some poor bids and play.

The bidding screens should settle the question of cheating by the Italian Blue Team once and for all. Only Belladonna and Garozzo remain from the early teams. They have been the two most outstanding of this championship team.

The 36 experts from six continents at the Bermuda tournament may find it difficult to adapt to the screens. They may grumble that it slows the game, throws them off stride, hampers their bidding, inhibits their partnership or that screens are manned by complete incompetents.

In the end, I think they will conclude that the screens remove any question of using unethical bidding procedures. For this reason, they should give their general approval of the screens. But don't bet on it. Bridge experts are a highly unpredictable lot.

When the world championship begins Jan. 25, I will be there to bring you the inside action and reactions from what I've seen in my 50 years of play.

No comment not always good

By Oswald & James Jacoby
West, an ordinary, good bridge player, led the king of diamonds.

This gave him a look at dummy and that look told him to shift to the king of clubs.

South, a cheerful, careless player, rose with dummy's ace and went after trumps.

West took his ace and led the five of clubs. East won with the jack and led a third club, whereupon East's nine of trumps became the setting trick.

A little thought would have kept South out of trouble. There was no hurry about taking that ace of clubs. He could have waited for the second club lead. After that play there would be no way for West to score his nine of trumps. South would have won the rubber instead of winding up in the soup.

As is the case with most bridge games no one mentioned that South had thrown away the rubber. West explained to us later that he had kept quiet because he wasn't proud of his double or his opening lead. He could have opened that king of clubs and beaten the hand irrespective of how South played. 24 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Best thing since Indian blankets —

Bulletproof clothing bails out clothing firm

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A clothing firm in business since 1839 is ready to start manufacturing high-fashion bulletproof apparel for men and women.

Hopefully, say officials of J. Capps & Sons Ltd., the public may soon order, or be fitted for, an outer vest, a sports coat or jacket and undergarments — all bulletproof. Costs for the attire — available in any color, plaids or checks — will range from around $120 to $250. Matching nonballistic trousers also can be ordered.

"It's the greatest thing that has happened to our firm since it switched from manufacturing Indian blankets to a full line of apparel," said Fred Gray, a vice president. "The bulletproof clothing program is our salvation. Because of the economy, we had to cut our work force last May from 290 to 37. Now we can start rehiring again."

Gray said the bulletproofing is done with a supertough fiber called Kevlar developed by DuPont. Panels of it can be removed when the clothes are cleaned. Weight ranges from 1 pound 9 ounces to 3 pounds and the company warrants its garments to withstand penetration by any handgun projectile except a .44 Magnum. The commercial name is ProLife Apparel.

"ProLife looks so promising we are phasing out our everyday clothing line," said Gray. "We've been testing for two years. We can incorporate bulletproofing in any type of garment, like overcoats. We try to design things that are not noticeable — for use, for instance, by women or men who work in high risk areas, perhaps in banks, currency exchanges, and the like. If we can save one life we feel the project is worthwhile."

Gray said federal, local and state law enforcement officials are "very much interested but there is some concern by them that bulletproof clothing will fall into the hands of criminals."

"But as it is, criminals can purchase practically anything they want — guns and knives," said Gray. "Our product would be ideal for use by VIPs or controversial figures who make lots of public appearances. In addition to handgun bullets, ProLife also provides a safeguard against a wide variety of sharp implements, including cleavers, dirks, butcher knives and straight razors."

Gray said one of the firm's better sellers may be a motorcycle jacket paneled with enough Kevlar to prevent bruises and lacerations in case of a spill.

UF drive hits 106% of goal

Henry Russell, executive director, Rockford United Way, told those attending the Dixon United Fund Annual Meeting held Wednesday, board members and representatives of agencies receiving funds from the United Fund have a responsibility to know where funds are spent for social service work in the community and to see that the money is well spent.

Russell said this responsibility extends to any government funds which are used to conduct social service work of any kind.

Patrick Ward was named president at the session held in the Nachusa House to succeed John Tatum, and Richard Langenfeld will be 1975 campaign chairman.

Marge Moine, executive secretary, said the final unaudited financial report shows the 1974 campaign realized 106.6 per cent of its goal.

The board agreed to contract for the services of American City Bureau Beaver to conduct the 1975 campaign for $6,300 and to request Benjamin Knepper be assigned to the Dixon campaign. Knepper worked here in 1974 and the board expressed satisfaction with his services.

The United Way asks 5-10ths of 1 per cent of a campaign goal be paid for materials used and for the use of the logo United Ways, but Russell said it is not necessary to give this amount.

The board instructed the executive secretary to negotiate a contribution to United Way not to exceed $233 which is half of the amount called for under the United Way formula.

James Gustafson was elected vice president and new directors were Shelly Maves, John E. Payne, Mary Dixon, Wylie Fox, Mel Murphy and Bruce Forster.

Jaycees at work in the community

By KENT DENNIS
I really feel most people don't know what the Jaycees are all about; how we can offer a young man much, much more than involvement in the community.

Through projects that come out of what we call our internal programming, a young man can grow within himself to become more self-confident and more self-reliant. We can offer contacts with people, people who have it in their power to make things happen. Through our actions, masses of people become aware of problems that need solutions. Through our actions, these problems can be solved. I feel anyone who intends to make their home in our community, or any community for that matter, must be concerned about the environment that they move around in. Young men must want to be involved if they want their children, their families to grow up in the best possible environment.

These are the reasons I joined the Dixon Jaycees. First of all, and very selfishly I admit, I wanted to improve myself. I needed to make personal contacts to improve my business standing. The rest of the things mentioned just naturally fell in to place for me. While participating in projects, I improved my self-confidence and as a result, my self-image. The end result has been the improvement of my environment, to make my home and community a much better place in which to exist.

State leaders question timetable of Walker plans

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker's plan to plunge Illinois hundreds of millions of dollars deeper into debt over a short period of time has prompted serious questions from legislators, state officials and members of the business community.

Walker has proposed the sale of $1.9 billion in revenue and general obligation bonds with the proceeds to be used for a massive, two-year construction program intended to boost the sagging economy and fight unemployment. Bond financing on this scale is new to Illinois.

"Hasty action on what seems to be an economic panacea could have detrimental effects on the state financial picture for years to come," said Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

"We must seriously question this, or any administration's ability to spend so many hundreds of millions of dollars in so short a period of time," said Rep. James Washburn, R-Morris, the House Republican leader.

"There are a number of questions that must be raised and carefully examined to see what merit, if any, there is in mortgaging our children to offset what is likely to be a temporary 1.4 per cent increase in Illinois unemployment," said Comptroller George W. Lindberg.

About $1 billion of the cost of the new program is to be paid for through the sale of general obligation bonds, which are backed by "the full faith and credit" of the state and are repaid with tax money from the general revenue fund.

The balance of nearly $900 million is to come from revenue bonds. These are sold by the state but are paid back by the user of the money. Student fees, for example, are used to repay bonds sold to build university dormitories.

In the current market, general obligation bonds are sold at between 5 and 6 per cent interest for 25 years, Budget Director Hal Hovey said. This means that, as a general rule, borrowing through bonds costs the taxpayers in interest over 25 years about 70 per cent of the amount borrowed. Thus for every $100 million borrowed, $170 million must be repaid over a 25-year period.

Critics say a large-scale sale of bonds may have two adverse effects: —It could saddle the future generation with a debt it did not ask for and limit the flexibility of future governors to deal similarly with changes in the economy.

—It could place the state in a position of having borrowed too much money and give it a lower bond rating which would mean higher interest rates. Ila tight current available dollar situation. In effect, you're mortgaging your children. They pay it off."

Walker argues that the cost of the projects will be spread evenly over the period of repayment.

vice president of the Taxpayer's Federation of Illinois, a non-profit group, warned: "You don't want to get this (program) too large so you burden future generations and make them unable to carry on their programs."

Some bond experts have said that the state should not issue more than $400 million in general obligation bonds per year to maintain the premium rating, although they concede that much depends on the market conditions.

Hovey said the state could possibly market $1 billion in bonds over a two-year period without jeopardizing the triple-A rating.

A Chicago bond analyst, Robert Sharp, declined to place a dollar figure on how many bonds the state could safely sell in a year, but added there should be no difficulty selling them.

"I have seen general obligation bonds go very readily," he said.

Since the 1970 Illinois Constitution was approved, the state has been able to issue bonds with the authorization of three-fifths of the General Assembly or a referendum. Prior to that a referendum was required.

The executive branch had the authorization since the early 1960s to sell more than $3 billion in general obligation bonds for such things as highways, mass transit, schools, state buildings and anti-pollution projects.

However, only $980 million worth of bonds have actually been sold and none have been issued during the current fiscal year.

Much of the new authorization sought by Walker is for new types of projects not covered in the current bond programs.

The amount of money spent by the state to pay off the principal and interest on general obligation bonds has increased from $15 million in fiscal 1972, to $62 million in fiscal 1973, to $86 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1974.

Bond financing goes back in Illinois as far as 1850 when the state borrowed money to build canals and railroads but was unable to repay the bonds.

The state Constitution approved in 1870 placed a $250,000 ceiling on the debt that could be incurred without a referendum of the people. Since then several bond issues have been approved, notably for building construction.

Illinois currently has a triple-A rating, the highest.

"Bonding is a way to avoid spending current funds," said Deputy Comptroller Robert Mandeville in an interview. "In a sense, it's an out if you have

Ford opposition mounting by Demos

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democrats are hurrying to block President Ford's energy program in the face of his renewed appeals for public backing and continued hard stand against gas rationing. The Democrats are seeking to delay Ford's boost of oil tariffs, and they plan to attach a delaying measure to the bill that raises the legal ceiling on the federal debt. The House Ways and Means Committee was opening consideration today of the debt-ceiling measure, which Ford wants. "The odds are probably more than even that the committee would combine the debt ceiling with the import-duty bill," Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Thursday.

Disgusted over reform rules plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leading spokesmen for black and female Democrats charge that the party's 1976 reform rules have been gutted by the commission assigned to supervise them. They plan to ask the party's national committee to overturn the action, taken Thursday at a long, often emotional meeting of the Compliance Review Commission. On a 14-to-9 vote the panel limited the application of the reform rules, specifically those calling for greater efforts to involve women and minorities, to the 1976 convention delegate-selection process and the election of state party officers, state Democratic committees and the Democratic National Committee.

Arab purchase of bank under study

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—A Saudi Arabian multimillionaire's bid to buy control of a San Jose bank has sparked a battle over conflicting ideas of freedom. It's freedom to buy versus freedom of speech. Adnan M. Spokesmen for minority directors of the First National Bank of San Jose say Khashoggi has employed his vast wealth to use U.S. laws and courts to muzzle their First Amendment rights to argue against his takeover bid.

Hitler's 'Triumph of the Will' showing at Amboy

AMBOY—"Triumph of the Will," a two-hour film, will be sponsored by the Sinissippi Council for Social Studies at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Amboy High School auditorium.

Adolph Hitler commissioned Leni Riefenstahl to produce a record of the Sixth Annual Party Congress in Nuremberg. Placing a staff of 120 people and 30 cameras at her disposal, Hitler and Goebbels staged the most spectacular propaganda rally the world had ever seen.

The gigantic extravaganza involved the efforts of hundreds of thousands of people.

The film begins with "Der Fuehrer's" descent from the clouds, his plane casting its shadow on Nuremberg like the black eagle, the symbol of the Nazi party. Hitler, standing in a moving car, makes his way through the streets clogged with frenzied worshippers. Nuremberg is a sea of swastika banners. Military marches on Wagnerian themes accompany the "tableau vivants" staged by the Hitler Youth groups. By night the city is ablaze with torches and bonfires. There are major policy speeches by Goebbels, Goering, Streicher, Himmler and Hess. A vast legion of armored divisions charges across the field during Reichswehr maneuvers.

This two-hour expression of a fanatical devotion to the Fuehrer principle is a unique historical record which perhaps more than any other document exposes the psychology of the Third Reich.

Gary Carlson, high school social studies teacher, invites the public to attend. Carlson said, "This is a rare historical film and I hope many people will avail themselves of the opportunity to see it."

Students help alleviate world food shortage

EUREKA — A "death pit" 50 yards long and six feet deep looms in Union County.

Should farmers frustrated over beef prices decide to fill the mass grave with calves, Eureka College students are prepared to head for Cobden.

While the trip would be to save calves from slaughter, the ultimate goal is to spare human lives.

Illinois, where feeding the world's hungry was the topic.

While there, Palin was assured the aid of CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) in continuing GLEANers projects. This support will be quite important in beginning to consolidate concerned college and university groups throughout Illinois into a statewide unit dedicated to the same ideals as both GLEANers and CROP are.

"The directors of CROP in Wisconsin (Bill Whitcomb) and Texas (Paul Rassel) are guaranteeing all the men, materials, and facilities we need to accomplish our goals," said Palin.

"They're looking to GLEANers International as a pilot program with the potential of uniting local campus units into a state-wide student organization," Palin added.

"GLEANers has great commitment," said Palin, "as well as the freedom to act on a local basis, but now we need to organize to enable us to act as a large scale national unit."

One of the first projects the group undertook to decrease the present world food shortage was to glean corn from Illinois farm fields that harvesting ma-

The calves are being kept and cared for by the students in a one-acre lot on the sprawling, Central Illinois campus. They will be transported soon by Heifers International, an organization that GLEANers is using to distribute the calves to destitute farmers throughout the world.

Most recently, Phil Palin, the sophomore head of GLEANers, attended and spoke at the 1975 Church and Community Institute at the University of chines had left, hence the name GLEANers International. The money from the sale of the corn went directly to the CROP program.

GLEANers is backed by the Christian Church, as Eureka College was founded by and is affiliated with the Christian Church, (Disciples of Christ).

According to Palin "One of the unique things about GLEANers is that it is doing something about a very real problem."

One gentleman, hearing Palin speak at the Institute in Urbana was impressed by his enthusiasm and GLEANers' accomplishments, but he had a worried look on his face.

"Is this going to turn into another campus movement like the '60s?" the man queried with a concerned voice.

Palin quickly replied, "I hope to see it reach the scope of the movement of the '60s, but I expect it to end up heading in quite a different direction than the student activists' movement of the last decade did."

"Barbara Walters recently commented on nationwide television that the trouble with all the committee's attempting to deal with world food shortages is that they're all talk and no action."

"Well, our group is based on action, and our members are enthusiastic about GLEANers. After forming our group last August and formulating our goals people started getting excited. We grew faster than we ever anticipated," stated Palin.

"I see," the man said with a relieved look. "Constructive — not destructive."

The Lord's House

... a Treasury of Man's Noblest Aspirations in Religious Architecture

Toledo Cathedral (SPAIN)

Although reigning majestically over the heart of the city for over 750 years, this noble edifice is now merely a forlorn reminder of Spain's most glorious days. Toledo, home of El Greco, is 40 miles southwest of Madrid in the heart of the nation. Now a city of about 38,000, it once teemed with a population many times greater. Swash-buckling adventurers returned in treasure-laden galleons from their exploits of conquest in far-away lands. But now, aside from its production of the remarkable "Toledo blades" swords, the city depends chiefly on tourism for existence.

Built on the site of a sixth-century Visigothic church, the edifice became a mosque when the Moors captured Toledo in 712 A.D. Spain was reconquered by the Christians in 1085 and, in 1226, under the reign of King Ferdinand III, this church took the splendid form it preserves today.

The main structure was completed in 1493 — an imposing combination of architectural styles, due to the extensive period of its construction and varying influences of its architects. In respect to the latter, the principal architects were Alvar Martinez and Hanequin de Egas.

Although impressive in size: 446 ft. long; 207 ft. wide; a 102 ft. high nave; and 2 spiked spires reaching to 295 ft. (the south frontal tower was capped with an oriental dome - the design of Enrique de Egas), the true glories of Toledo cathedral lie within.

Interiorly, more than six centuries of sculptural skill and masterful artistry by almost 200 of Europe's greatest artisans transformed this edifice into one of the richest art treasure-houses in the world. Among these incomparable adornments are: 8 portals which are wonders of Gothic structure; 5 grand aisles; 84 massive columns; 750 magnificent stained-glass windows depicting scripture scenes and incidents in the lives of Spanish saints (executed by such eminent artists as El Greco, Titian and Goya); a colossal 85-ft. high sculpture — one of the world's largest — in the sanctuary: The "Transparency", created by Narciso Tome, 1720 to 1732; 20 chapels, each with a fabulous history — including the beautiful chapel of Our Lady of the Sanctuary where an ancient and much-venerated statue of the Virgin Mary reposes, adorned on festive occasions with a priceless mantle embroidered with 21 pounds of pearl dust, 85,000 pearls, and an astonishing number of rubies, amethysts, diamonds, and other precious stones.

One of El Greco's most famous canvas paintings, "The Casting of Lots for the Garments of the Crucified Christ" adds to the church's treasure.

The high cost of Vienna

EDITOR'S NOTE: Earlier this year, Murray Olderman learned that relatives of his late parents, who came to the United States from Russia 60 years ago, still lived in Odessa. He decided to search them out and, rather than fly, he picked up a car in Munich and drove some 1,700 miles through Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. This is the second of a series which describes the author's personal odyssey.

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
VIENNA, Austria — (NEA) — In once lovely Vienna, the city of schnitzel and muse, even the waltz is inflated.

In the park near the Opern Ring, that circular boulevard which outlines the core of the city like an artichoke heart, the band leader goes "Uh-eins... and uh-zwei..." — pure Lawrence Welk — and the motley orchestra at Hueberl's Kur Salon outdoors in the crisp night air, fiddles prosaically into some Strauss melodies.

"You must order," says the waiter snappily. The tab, in Austrian schilling, is $4.50 for a glass of red wine and a glass of mineral water. The tables are filled mostly with Japanese tourists.

It was once proclaimed that Europe could be toured judiciously on $5 a day.

The tab has gone up to more like $5 an hour.

At the Essso Motor Hotel in Heidelberg, a cramped little cubicle goes for $34 a night and there is also a self-service refrigerator bar. You drink what you want and write your own tab — Germany's version of the honor system.

At a gasthaus next to the famed Heidelberg Castle, whose foundations date to the 13th century, I use a 20th-century telephone in the kitchen to call Albert Speer, who dreamed up that neoclassical architecture of Hitlerian Germany and then kept the war machine going to the bitter end. For this he spent 20 years as a war criminal in Spandau learning English. Speer has his own family villa near the castle on the hills overlooking the Neckar river and is finishing his second book. He is off to Berlin on of the war, and from it straggled pathetic skeletons in their striped rags.

It always bothered me that, either because of abhorrence or negligence, I never visited the camp. Now is the chance to allay those pangs of conscience.

The camp, on a promontory overlooking the Danube valley, has been preserved as a museum. The barracks, including the gas chambers and the crematorium, are intact. On this quiet Sunday, almost 30 years later, the parking lot is filled with cars of the curious, drawn by this souvenir of a savage past. And almost all the visitors are Austrian.

In Vienna there is scarcely

Europe on $5 an hour business. "That will be 50 pfennig (20 cents)," says the gnaedige Frau in the kitchen, "for the phone call."

At a gas station on the autobahn, near Nuernberg, it takes 42 liters (or roughly 10 gallons) to fill the tank, and the price is 37 Deutsche Mark, or roughly $15 — $1.50 a gallon.

The highway to Vienna goes by the little town of Enns on the Danube River. This was where the Russians and the American troops hooked up in April 1945, and a young infantry lieutenant had just joined the forward U.S. battalion. Just a couple of miles away stood Mauthausen, one of the cruelest death camps any thought of the past. From the Cobenzl, a restaurant high in the Vienna Woods overlooking the city, you can barely make out the skyline of new high rises murky poking through dense smog. Vienna is a smirk of its old charm.

Frau Hofmann, who proudly points out she was the guide for Barbara Walters, too, imperiously clanks on her glass when she feels the waiter is too slow.

Vienna is bustling. And expensive. Two nights at the Hotel Sacher, an old hotel tucked behind the famed Opera House, total $186.50 (dinner one evening included).

At Demels famed for sweets, a box of candy costs $25. For an afternoon respite of one coffee, one slice of Sacher torte, a dish of ice cream and a small bottle of mineral water, the check comes to $3.75.

"But everything is made right here on the premises," says the waitress proudly, "down to the last speck of sugar."

On the Kaerntner Strasse — a promenade block closed off to automobiles, where there are expensive items inside the shops and expensive hookers outside — drinks for two at the Cafe Splendide come to $11. You get the bad rock music free.

I find only one cut-rate item in Vienna. On the main boulevard into the city, bumper to bumper, I squeeze through a yellow traffic light.

Immediately a police car veers behind, lights blinking. My car has German license plates. I pull over and show the cop my American passport and explain it is my first time here. He shrugs.

"It is verboten," says the cop, "to go through a yellow light. That will be 40 Schillings. Bitte."

I argue. He's adamant. And his hand is out. I must pay him right now, on the spot. He writes out a receipt. I have a souvenir of Vienna.

What the hell, it only cost $2.25.

Faces death not alone

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — "If I were in your place right now I would be crying and feeling sorry for myself, but you are not. I look up to you for that, I really do."

So wrote a member of the fifth-grade class at Cardozo School in Riverbank, Calif. to Heidi Biggs, 14, who is terminally ill with cancer.

Hundred of letters, get-well wishes and gifts were sent to the girl after her story became known and doctors were unsure if she would live past Christmas.

Although Heidi knows she is terminally ill, she remains in good spirits and plans to answer the many letters.

The Cardozo fifth-grade class, taught by Jeanne Dodson, sent greetings, poems, tape recordings of their voices and crayon drawings. One of the pictures shows a girl in angel's wings with thick, gold hair.

Heidi lost her hair during her illness and only stubble has grown back. In the same drawing, a bright orange sun, in the shape of a heart, shines.

A letter signed by Hector D. was attached to the picture. It said: "Dear Heidi, here is a picture because I care for you."

But one of Heidi's favorite letters came from the Liss family in Syracuse, N.Y., who reflected the girl's deep religious beliefs. It read in part:

"Many people all over our country are doing such nice things for you, but I wonder if you realize how much you are doing for so many of us."

"Today with so much happening in our world, people have become depressed, angry, impatient and faithless. Now just as long as the star of Bethlehem brought new hope into the world, your faith also has been like that beautiful star. You truly are a child of God for He has chosen you to lift up the hearts of so many to bring back their faith and hope.... You'll always be my shining star of Bethlehem."

GHOST FISH THAT'S GETTING AWAY it isn't. "Fisherman" is actually a Department of Agriculture researcher giving a booster shot of sodium bicarbonate to an Arizona stock pond. The treatment has been found effective in sealing pond bottoms to prevent seepage in the arid Southwest.

New typewriter has many a person all keyed-up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If your quick brown fox sometimes makes his leap over a lazy dog, you can blame it on Christopher Sholes.

Way back in 1873, Sholes designed that most frustrating of contraptions, the typewriter keyboard.

And while history does not remember Sholes as a mischievous fellow, he purposely designed the keyboard so people would have a hard time using it. He reasoned that a plodding typist would be less likely to jam the keys of the crude machines.

Modern typewriters still use keyboards based on Sholes' prototype.

But 102 years and millions of unprintable oaths later, the SCM Corp. has introduced typewriters with the American Standard Keyboard, which experts say increases typing speed anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent.

SCM, manufacturer of Smith-Corona typewriters, is marketing four different models with the new keyboard. A company official says the typewriters, which cost about $15 more than a standard model, are beginning to sell.

The new keyboard was actually designed in 1932 by Dr. August Dvorak, director of research for the University of Washington. But SCM is the first company to manufacture a typewriter based on his design.

Dvorak's keyboard permits 70 per cent of the work to be done from the home keys, or second row, which is easiest to reach. Standard models allow for only 30 per cent of the typing to be done on the second row.

All vowels are grouped together on the second row, but the numerals are still out of reach on the top row. Some of the symbols, like the period, have been switched around.

Another feature of Dvorak's design is that it equalizes the typing done by each hand so that the weaker left hand won't have to do so much work.

Rocket wrestlers defeat Dixon

By TIMOTHY LYON
Telegraph Sports Writer
ROCK FALLS—Despite some very good highlights, the Dixon wrestlers performed rather poorly, here, Thursday night. The Dukes dropped a pair of important matches and enabled the Rock Falls Rockets to edge them 24-21 in the NCIC dual meet.

Dixon coach Ron Semetis summed up the meet with what he considered a very typical, but descriptive, statement: "Some wrestled well, and some wrestled poorly." Semetis continued, "The 155 match really hurt. If we would have won that the results would have been turned around."

The Dukes jumped off to a six-point lead when John Green, 98, pinned the Rockets' Eloy Mendez. The match began fairly even with Green getting the takedown almost immediately, but being reversed just as quickly. Green escaped only to be taken down, but he reversed before the period ended. Green started on top in the second period. He drove his opponent steadily to his back and gained the fall at 3:32.

Jeff Fitts, 105 pounder for the Rockets, destroyed Dixon's initiative by pinning Warren Gridley at 3:01 in the following match. Gridley was unable to score a point as Fitts took him down and placed him in a near fall in the first period. In the second, he wasn't any better off though he started up. Fitts quickly reversed and gained another near fall before sticking Gridley.

Ray Wilson ran into some very stiff competition as he encountered Rock Falls' 112 pounder, Jorge Cervantes, and was defeated 6-1. The opening period was a close face-off, with Cervantes finally taking Wilson down. Starting on the bottom, Wilson was put in a predicament before he could escape in the second period. Cervantes claimed his two points in the final period with a reversal.

The Rockets' lead went to six points when Bryan Berogan downed Jim Magnafici, at 119 for Dixon, 3-0. The first period was scoreless as neither of the grapplers could gain a takedown, but Berogan quickly escaped and took Magnafici down in the second. The third period was also scoreless.

The Dukes closed the gap to three (12-9) on Mike Fritts' 4-1 victory over Sam Reyes, at 126. Again, neither of the wrestlers could get a takedown, and no points were scored till the second period when Fritts reversed from the bottom. Reyes came back in the third by escaping, but Fritts took him down and kept control.

Gary Magnafici, at 132, brought the Dukes a tied score with a 10-3 victory over Rob Litton. Magnafici was fast to take Litton down, but allowed him to escape and took him down again. Magnafici started the second period on top and kept Litton down, but was unable to score. In the third, Magnafici reversed and put Litton in a predicament. In the last 10 seconds, Litton came alive and reversed, but Magnafici came back to the top in the final second.

Dixon again went six under after the 138 duel, when Steve Lybarger was pinned at 5:39 by Tom Licocci. Licocci was only able to take Lybarger down late in the first period, and the Dixon grappler escaped from the bottom at the start of the second. Then Licocci took him down again and placed him in a near fall and predicament. In the final period, Licocci escaped and got his third takedown before pinning Lybarger.

Mike James, at 145 for the Dukes, brought his team to within three (18-15) by winning his tough match with Jeff Wescott, 6-2. Once again, the opening period was a complete standoff, with neither of the grapplers able to score a point. Wescott went ahead in the second when he reversed and kept control of James. But James came back strong in the third by escaping and getting the takedown on Wescott. He then put him in a near fall.

Rory Fullmer put the Rockets out in front by six once again, by downing Randy Hazelwood 3-1 in the 155 contest. This time both the first and second periods were standoffs, with no points being gained by either contestant. Hazelwood got the first point in the third period when he was awarded a penalty for Fullmer's stalling. Fullmer made it up by getting a near fall on Hazelwood.

At 167 for Dixon, Mike Allen also ran into some tough competition—Dan Fiorini—and was defeated 6-1. Fiorini got the takedown but Allen managed an escape before the end of the period. Fiorini kept control for the remainder of the match, reversing in the second period and putting Allen into a predicament in the final period. Trailing 24-15, Dixon's only hope for victory was a fall from both Bob Pinegar and Ed Jones. Pinegar was unable to gain a pin, but handled his opponent, Chris Bower, with a 6-2 decision at 185. Bower took the initiative by taking Pinegar down. Pinegar came back by escaping before the end of the period. Though he had complete control, Pinegar was unable to gain any points in the second period. In the third, he reversed quickly and put Bower in a near fall.

Jones, also, was unable to pin his heavyweight opponent, Pat McDonnell, but brought in a nice 9-2 win. Jones got the first takedown, but McDonnell escaped, so Jones had to take him down again. McDonnell escaped again at the start of the second and Jones took him down once more. In the third period, Jones escaped from the bottom and got his final takedown.

Murphy gets 30 in win

By The Associated Press
How does Calvin Murphy get by in the National Basketball Association? Very easily, says his coach, Johnny Egan.

"He competes in the NBA because of his fantastic quickness ... that's the only way a man that small could compete in this league," the Houston Rockets' coach says of his diminutive star.

The 5-foot-10 Murphy, smallest man in the NBA, continued to fuel the Rockets Thursday night with a 30-point explosion that led a 96-95 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Murphy's big night was a result of circumstance, the player said.

"Rudy Tomjanovich wasn't feeling well, so they went to me more than they normally do," Murphy noted.

In the night's other NBA games, the New York Knicks beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 100-89 and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Philadelphia 76ers 108-100. In the American Basketball Association, the Kentucky Colonels beat the San Diego Conquistadors 113-109 and the Denver Nuggets turned back the San Antonio Spurs 127-117.

Two of Murphy's points came in the last minute and proved to be the winning basket for the Rockets. He tossed in a 23-foot jump shot.

John Drew scored 22 points for the Hawks and John Brown 18. Ed Ratliff scored 20 for Houston, which broke a seven-game losing streak.

Knicks 100, Cavaliers 89
Phil Jackson's 29 points and 13 rebounds and Earl Monroe's 26 points led New York over Cleveland.

Warriors 108, 76ers 100
Rick Barry scored 55 points, highest individual total of the NBA, as Golden State beat injury-hampered Philadelphia.

Barry scored 21 points in the third period to help the Warriors come from behind for a victory which increased their Pacific Division lead to nine games over idle Seattle.

The all-league performer hit on 23 of 49 field goal attempts, was 9-for-10 from the free throw line and added five rebounds as well as seven steals in his 12th game this season above 40 points.

Barry trails only Bob McAdoo of Buffalo in NBA scoring.

Colonels 113, Q's 109
Louie Dampier scored 10 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter to help Kentucky beat San Diego. Wil Jones led the winners with 22 points.

Nuggets 127, Spurs 117
Late free-throw shooting by All-Star guard Mack Calvin and Denver quickness produced a victory over San Antonio.

Controversy erupts in NFL drug story

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Federal and city officials appear to be at odds over the authenticity of Roxie Ann Rice's tale that she was a courier of drugs for National Football League players.

Thomas Maher, administrator of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration here, said Thursday the DEA considered the police report of Miss Rice's statement "authentic" and that her account to police contains "enough substance to warrant a full-scale investigation" into possible drug traffic involving professional athletes across the nation. The statement has her mentioning seven NFL teams and two in the American Basketball Association.

But Maher's comment came after Maj. Charles Wren, assistant chief of detectives in St. Louis, had said Miss Rice, 19, of St. Louis, denied she made such a statement.

"We are looking into this to the fullest extent," Wren said. "So far we have found nothing to substantiate any charges attributed to Miss Rice."

Wren also said she refused to talk to a lie detector test or to take a lie detector test or to talk to any of several persons in the NFL who remember some of the incidents related in a 39-page intra-departmental police memo.

"She flatly denied the charges she reportedly made, flatly refused to take a lie detector test and flatly refused to talk to reporters," Wren said. He said Miss Rice's decision came on his advice.

"In the absence of an attorney, I felt I must take a protective role in her case. I did not want her to be exploited," Wren said.

The memo was made during a six-hour session with Det. Sgt. Charles O'Brien and agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Sauk Valley downs Kishwaukee

By EDWIN CALLAHAN

Telegraph Sports Writer

SAUK VALLEY—The Sauk Valley Redmen took an early lead in the first half and held it to beat the Kishwaukee Kougars 64-65, here, Thursday night in an Arrowhead Conference game. The Kougars were effectively out of the game at half time, despite a slightly weak Sauk second half.

The Redmen's defense outmatched Kishwaukee's offense throughout the game. Using man-to-man, Sauk made it very difficult to work the ball in close to the basket. Several times the Kougars had to pass the ball around for up to 40 seconds just to set up one shot. The man-to-man Sauk defense also enabled them to make several profitable steals from Kishwaukee which were converted into points.

Offensively, the Redmen's first half was excellent. They hit both from inside and outside after a slow start. Steve Hook scored impressively from outside while Tom Zinanni and Tim Granow worked mostly from under the basket.

The Redmen bent a little under increased Kougars pressure in the second half and their game slipped a little. This was most noticeable in offense. Sauk players didn't wait to set up really good shots but tried to score as much as possible with the result that their scoring went down. Redmen defense still remained strong, however, and the Kougars never really threatened the lead.

The Redmen got on the boards first on a basket from John Windham 46 seconds into the game. Kip Wood matched it for Kishwaukee a few seconds later. The shooting of both teams for the next three minutes was cold, and four and a half minutes into the game the score was 6-6. Hitting picked up over the next two minutes with neither team taking a real lead.

Mike Stockwell then dumped a bucket from the side. Randy Paisley stole the ball from the Kougars, passed it to Hook, who sank it from outside to put the score at 16-12. The Redmen clung grimly to this lead for five minutes despite a great deal of effort from Kishwaukee. With eight minutes left in the half, Paisley made a field goal and the Sauk defense cut the Kougars off from the basket completely.

Hook then hit the basket to make the score 28-22. Kishwaukee threw the ball out of bounds, losing it to the Redmen. Hook quickly launched a shot which bounced off the rim into the hands of Mike Friedlein, who tipped it in. Zinanni drove in on a steal to add two more points to make the score 34-22. Paul Miller finally broke the Kougars' scoring drought with a bucket at 6:30.

The Redmen spent the rest of the half adding to their lead. They ended up outscoring Kishwaukee 13-6. The first half ended with Sauk ahead 47-32.

The Kougars turned to pressure tactics in the second half, driving harder and playing far more aggressively in both offense and defense. Sauk faltered slightly but recovered to increase the lead to 18 points, with 8:25 left in the game. However, Sauk began to slip again slightly afterward. With the score 64-47, Dennis Morton hit a field goal.

A minute later, Bob Cardine sank a jump shot, and Joe Meadows made two free throws to put the score at 64-53 with 5:00 to go. This was the lowest Kishwaukee could manage to cut the lead. Baskets from Hook and Granow slowly began to inch Sauk's margin up. The Redmen benefited from Kougars fouling in the last three minutes, to sink six free throws. With this and some good defense, Sauk rolled up 10 points to the Kougars' 4 to win the game 64-65.

Sauk coach Frank Palumbo had some praise for guard Paisley after the game. "This was Paisley's best game yet. He played a helluva game. Zinanni and Hook played real well, too."

"Fortunately we played an excellent first half," he went on to say. "We didn't do so well the second half. We got a little shaky and a little impatient."

Hook was the top scorer for the Redmen with 22 points. Paisley and Zinanni tied for second with 17 each, while Granow had 14. Kirby Chilton was the leading scorer for Kishwaukee with 14 points. Carine was second with 13, and Wood had 12.

College tennis goes bigtime

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—Once upon a time, all a college coach had to do was tell his player to run through a wall. The next sound heard would be a great crash of flesh meeting brick.

Nowadays, lament many coaches, players are becoming arrogantly individualistic, and some ask, "Which wall?" while others wonder out loud why a wall at all.

Times are getting tougher for coaches to do their jobs. There is the economy. There are the growing number of hounds being unleashed in the National Collegiate Athletic Association office to sniff out nefarious recruiting tactics and on-campus underhandedness. There is, of course, the new-fangled desire of athletes to be accepted as human beings instead of as performing beasts.

One need not be an Ara or a Bear to comprehend this.

Tucked away in the relatively minor college sport of tennis, Southern Methodist University coach John Gardner is experiencing this revolutionary explosion himself.

The growing problem of the shrinking buck is devastating many college sports. Several colleges are giving up their one-time greatest breadwinner, football. Several other colleges, in a last-ditch effort, are requesting the return of one-plate football to cut down on squads. Programs in other sports are being cut or wiped out altogether.

Meanwhile, some sports are broadening in popularity. Tennis is one. At SMU a couple of years ago, the alumni and some local businessmen of Dallas felt that tennis should be a bigger deal. But recruiting and the sorry tennis program at the school were suffering. So they pitched in, since the school itself couldn't handle the financial end, and organized a new program.

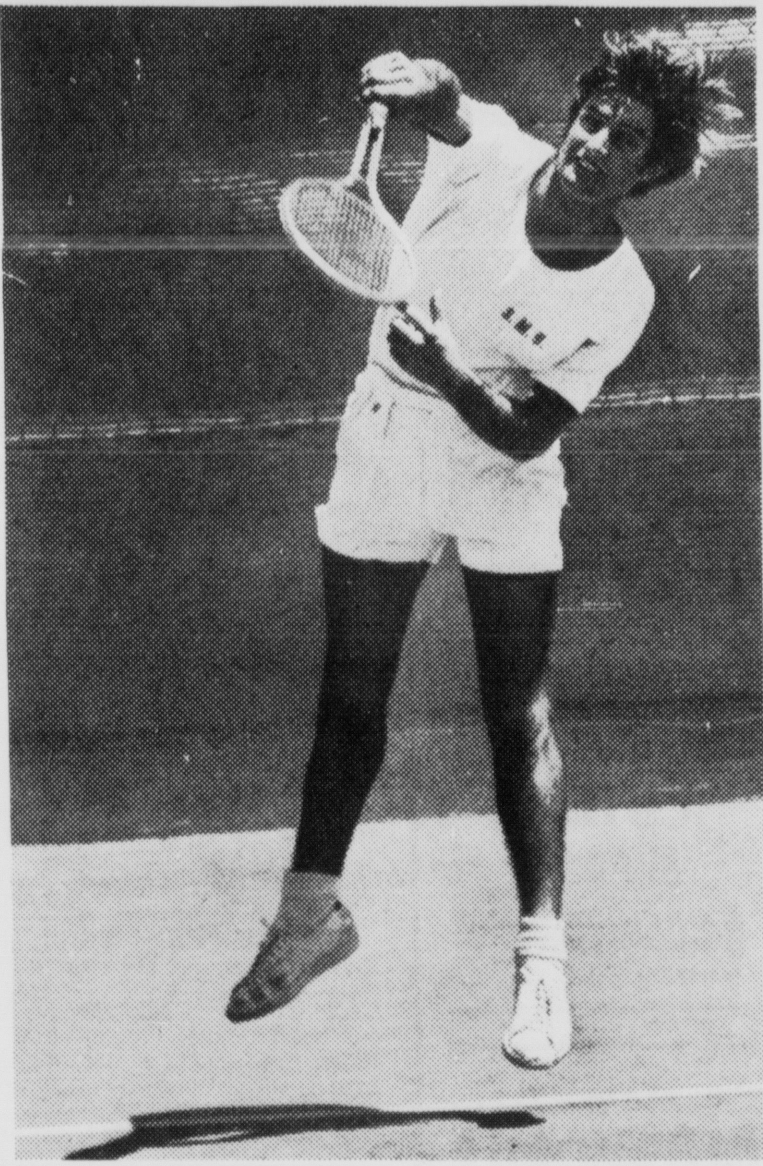

The arranged for the tennis team to put on tennis clinics for money; they organized a local tennis tournament for duffers, called the Wretched Wound Wrobin; they organized auctions; and they enticed the Spalding sports company to help sponsor the only major mixed doubles tournament held by itself and not part of another tournament.

All this has helped SMU leap from the bottom of the Southwestern Conference tennis standings to the top. It has also been ranked fourth among all college teams the past few years.

Much of the progress is credited to Gardner, a 25-year-old Australian who once played with fair success on the amateur tennis circuit in Europe and Australia. Besides having a reputation for knowing which end is up on a tennis racquet, Gardner also is chief tub-thumper for money-making activities.

Recruiting is also his province. And here, too, there are increasing problems, though not necessarily for him. The Southwest Conference has instituted polygraph tests for coaches to chart the truth of their recruiting techniques.

"It's a shame it has come to that," said Gardner, "but it doesn't matter to me. I see a prospect one time and tell him I'll not pressure him, but for him to know that I'm interested even though I'm not calling every day.

"Some coaches call all the time. What they have to say that's new is beyond me. How many times a week can you tell someone Merry Christmas?" One thing they tell, Gardner notwithstanding, is the benefit of playing tennis in college before making a try for the pros. Jimmy Connors, certainly, and Roscoe Tanner, possibly, are the most prominent players to quit college since the pro tennis boom began about four years ago.

But if an athlete quits sooner, tries for the pros, and then fails, he will have lost a chance for a four-year scholarship.

In recruiting, laws to handcuff coaches are rampant. One, for example now disallows a game set up between recruits who are visiting the college.

Now how can a coach tell who's best anymore?

Modernization has brought some player recalcitrance. Some student-athletes have even picketed over the past few years for fairer treatment from hidebound coaches and athletic departments.

But with all this, Gardner feels that coaching is still more joy than agony. Especially when he looks at other coaches in other circumstances.

"Take the coach of a Big Ten tennis team," said Gardner, sporting his winter Texas tan. "He has to convince a high school tennis player he should go North instead of to a Texas or California or Florida school, and that, no, he wouldn't have to play many matches in the snow."

Scouts pick up win at Boston Garden

By The Associated Press
The Kansas City Scouts don't win very often but they did Thursday night and they did it, of all places, at Boston Garden.

"We deserved to win," declared Scouts' Coach Bep Guidolin after his expansion club damped the Boston Bruins 5-2. "We worked so damned hard for it."

Second-period goals by Ed Gilbert and Garry Croteau put Kansas City on top 3-1 and they held off a furious Boston rally for their 10th victory of the season and only their second on the road.

Guidolin said the goaltending of 23-year-old Dennis Herron, picked up from Pittsburgh Jan. 11, was the key to the victory. Bobby Orr put Boston on top with a goal just over a minute into the game but Herron didn't get rattled.

Randy Rota tied it for the Scouts in the first period and after Gilbert and Croteau connected in the second stanza, Johnny Bucyk pulled Boston within one early in the final period. But that was as close as the Bruins got as Herron wound up with 34 saves.

Rangers 5, Flames 2
Ted Irvine, Greg Polis and Jean Ratelle scored third-period goals as New York raised its record for the last 13 games to 11-1-1. The Rangers bombarded Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard with 57 shots on goal, 24 of them in the second period.

Sabres 5, Red Wings 1
Rick Dudley, Don Luce and

Jim Lorentz scored second-period goals as Buffalo ran its winning streak to five games. Marcel Dionne got the lone Detroit tally, his 25th of the season.

Black Hawks 3, Islanders 1
Pit Martin scored one goal and assisted on another as Chicago stayed within three points of first-place Vancouver in Division 2. Jude Drouin got the New York goal on a power play.

Canadiens 7, North Stars 0
Ken Dryden turned in his second shutout of the season and Glen Sather scored twice as Montreal extended Minnesota's losing streak to 10 games. Peter Mahovich and Guy Lafleur had a goal and two assists apiece each for the winners.

This boy is learning while earning

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. Even a college education.

More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is on how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and servicing, he gains this valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaperboys, notable successes among them, have told us as much.

Your newspaperboy also applies the 3rd metic he learns in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills... thus he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of promptness and of good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life... while building a bank account of his own.

Should your son be inclined to put himself that step ahead, have him get in touch with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it... the opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

"What can you get for making a great deal with The Dodge Boys? A check for $300 from Dodge."

Joe Garagiola

Listen to ol' Joe G. I'm gonna tell you how to make the deal of a lifetime on the "Dodge of the Week." Right now, during the Car Clearance Carnival at the Dodge Boys.

Here's how:
Every week from now till February 16, the Dodge Boys will pick one gorgeous Dodge as "Dodge of the Week." Could be a Monaco. A Dart. A Coronet. Even a pickup or van. Now you hustle down and make the Dodge Boys give you their deal on that Dodge. Then, find out how you collect your check from Dodge for at least $200. But there's more. Trade in the right car on the "Dodge of the Week," and you get a $100 trade-in bonus. That's a total of $300!

But there's more to the Car Clearance Carnival than "Dodge of the Week" deals. Through February 28, the Dodge Boys are offering other great deals on all '75

Dodges. They've got a lot of cars to move. And they're gonna move 'em.

And—even if you don't end up buying a new Dodge,
you might end up driving one. Just by entering the Dodge Boys' Clearance Sweepstakes! Each sweepstakes winner (and there'll be plenty—so one could be you!)
gets free use of a brand-new Dodge for one whole year.
You've got nothing to lose. You've got nothing to buy.
All you gotta do is come in for full details.

But hurry. If you're not driving a new Dodge by the end of the Car Clearance Carnival, it won't be the Dodge Boys' fault.

¹ Sorry, only one "Dodge of the Week" deal per customer. Retail customers only.
² Sweepstakes ends February 28, 1975. Void in states where prohibited by law. Open only to licensed drivers 18 years old or older.

Experts propose to freeze electricity

BATAVIA, Ill. (AP) — Surplus electricity generated at night and on weekends might in the future be stored in a sort of deep freeze, the way food is, to be used later.

This is a proposal of physicists at Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory and the University of Wisconsin that calls for storing energy at supercold temperatures to stretch power resources.

Most generating plants are operated at a fairly constant rate for maximum efficiency, and it is difficult to adjust output to demand.

At night and on weekends, when demand is less, utilities generate more electricity than is used.

Generators fueled with coal can be turned off at night but the furnaces must be kept burning. And nuclear energy plants cannot be turned off at all. The excess energy is thrown away.

If a successful large-scale method of storage could be devised, the excess generated during off-peak hours could be salvaged, just as leftovers from a big meal can be saved and served later.

A number of proposals for storage of energy, including the use of batteries, are being studied by nuclear physicists and electric utilities.

The world's most powerful nuclear accelerator is at Fer-milab, and demands for power to operate it fluctuate widely — from a few megawatts to 300 megawatts for a few seconds at a time.

Laboratory scientists joined with a group from Wisconsin that earlier had begun a study of possible energy storage systems.

The proposed system involves a superconducting magnetic coil immersed in liquid helium at extremely cold temperatures —450 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

But $20 million stands between the drawing boards and realization of the project.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE C-659: Audrey X., aged 47, sat in my evening audience at Los Angeles.

My topic for that speech was "The Worry Clinic."

So I briefly outlined my smorgasbord formula of the six cases each week, which cover Love, Marriage Problems, Child Cases, Personality Improvement, Psychosomatic Medicine and one on Applied Psychology in business, the professions, or teaching and preaching.

"But I received some early advice from William R. Hearst, Sr.," I explained.

"For Mr. Hearst urged me to needle fat, stodgy wives, plus lazy professors who try to coast after acquiring 'tenure,' and also the sleep-producing sermons in the pulpits, who keep emptying pews via their dull public speaking."

The I told them that Mr. Hearst's formula has proved very effective in stimulating talk-up, as well as letter input to the hundreds of newspapers that run this column.

"But I frequently needle the Women's Lib, too," I said, with a grin.

Just then Audrey, a thin-faced lady about a dozen rows back, shouted:

"I resent your attacks on Women's Lib!"

Which didn't disturb me, for I merely smiled and said:

"More power to you!"

Then I launched upon a discussion of practical psychology, saying the California divorce rate of almost 50 per cent showed a great need for insuring the mental health of the home and the children therein.

So I swung over into my discussion of why women unwittingly drive husbands into outside affairs by their failure to serve sufficiently alluring boudoir cheesecake.

At that, up jumped Audrey, who shouted in what she apparently meant to be withering disdain:

"You male chauvinist!"

Whereupon she stomped out of the packed auditorium!

The audience and I laughed, for we had already developed a jolly form of rapport during my earlier remarks.

"We support your stand," many of the remaining women called out, apparently to save me from embarrassment.

So I waved my hand in salute and thanked them, but said Audrey made a mistake in leaving so soon for the best of my speech was still to come, namely, the recipe for boudoir cheesecake.

And as I progressed in my address, I noted that the side door through which Audrey had departed, was furtively opened

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, January 24, the 24th day of 1975. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1848, a gold nugget was found in California at a sawmill being built for John Sutter near Coloma, California. The discovery touched off the California gold rush.

On this date — In 1830, the city of Venice was declared a free port.

In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized, by Sir Robert Baden-Powell in England.

In 1915, the British defeated the Germans in a World War I sea battle off Dogger Bank in the North Sea.

In 1924, Petrograd was renamed Leningrad in honor of the founder of the Soviet Union.

Mills said that development of a major energy storage device cannot be done with grants of a few thousand dollars but requires the kind of investment put into the space program. A request for funding is pending in Washington.

The feasibility of such a storage device already has been demonstrated. A much smaller superconducting magnet is in use at Fermilab in one of the experimental areas.

Mills said, "As far as we know this is the most efficient way of storing energy."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Most pressures today will come from family-related matters. They can be lessened if you keep your temper in check.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Measure severity of your words, lest you say some harsh things to a subordinate that will leave a poor, lasting imprint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your guard up today in all your commercial dealings or you may be the victim of a rip-off. Examine closely any purchases.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things will not go as smoothly as you hoped today. Try not to make your displeasure too visible. Smile even if it hurts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't resurrect an old, volatile issue on which you and another don't see eye-to-eye. Sparks will fly if you do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to become too involved with friends financially or businesswise. Keep your social interests apart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to set goals for yourself today beyond your reach. It will only frustrate you if they aren't attained.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll run into considerable resistance if you try to impose your views on others. Allow all to think for themselves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An old problem will make its presence felt again in an area where you share a vested interest. Be wary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Decisions, based on spiteful motivations or the desire to get even with one you've felt has wronged you, will backfire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's wonderful to be co-operative and to help others, but don't be a patsy and let another pawn her task off on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you'll be meeting socially will come on quite impressively. If you'll look closely you'll see this person is mostly facade.

For Saturday, Jan. 25, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Most pressures today will come from family-related matters. They can be lessened if you keep your temper in check.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Measure severity of your words, lest you say some harsh things to a subordinate that will leave a poor, lasting imprint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your guard up today in all your commercial dealings or you may be the victim of a rip-off. Examine closely any purchases.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things will not go as smoothly as you hoped today. Try not to make your displeasure too visible. Smile even if it hurts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't resurrect an old, volatile issue on which you and another don't see eye-to-eye. Sparks will fly if you do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to become too involved with friends financially or businesswise. Keep your social interests apart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to set goals for yourself today beyond your reach. It will only frustrate you if they aren't attained.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll run into considerable resistance if you try to impose your views on others. Allow all to think for themselves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An old problem will make its presence felt again in an area where you share a vested interest. Be wary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Decisions, based on spiteful motivations or the desire to get even with one you've felt has wronged you, will backfire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's wonderful to be co-operative and to help others, but don't be a patsy and let another pawn her task off on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you'll be meeting socially will come on quite impressively. If you'll look closely you'll see this person is mostly facade.
